HISTORIC ALCAZAR OF TOLEDO BLOWN UP BY LOYALISTS

FASCIST FORT IS DEMOLISHED BY SERIES OF TNT BLASTS

Defenders Repulse Attack in Six-Hour Fight After First Mines Are Set Off; Besiegers Prepare to Explode Two Tons More.

MASSIVE TOWER HURLED INTO AIR

Falling Masonry Crushes Houses—Number in Citadel 1700 Men, Women and Children; Great Number Killed.

Copyright 1936, by the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, Spain, Sept. 18.—Government forces all but demolished Toledo's historic Alcazar with a series of TNT mines today. The ancient citadel of the Moorish Kings of Spain was in ruins.

A great number of the Fascist defenders who had held out against the Government for 59 days of bitter fighting and bombardment, were killed. From day to day during the siege the number inside the fortress was reported to be about 1700 men, women and children.

First Explosions 6:15 A.M. Mines were set off at 6:15 a.m. after an hour of bombardment by two Government 6-inch guns, posted on a hill a mile and a half to the North.

A great crowd of citizens of Toledo saw a gray column of smoke rise, heard a deep and rumbling roar, and saw the Alcazar's southwest tower heave upward in a mass of splintered rock. A great avalanche of stone came down on top of the already ruined citadel. Tons of debris showered down on nearby houses, several of which collapsed.

The southwestern tower was blasted off its base, but the central portions of the west face and the southeastern section of the Alcazar were left standing. Both northern towers previously had been destroyed by artillery fire.

Assault Guards Charge.

Fifteen minutes of artillery bombardment followed the blast; then 1500 picked assault guards and militiamen stormed the wreckage. The attackers crawled up the steeply sloping front of the building, exchanging shots with Fascists who rushed to their machine guns. Men fought man while hand grenades exploded through the shattered caverns and the deep cellars.

After two hours of fighting, the Government succeeded in planting a flag in the western facade of the ruins, but the rebels firmly held their position.

The fighting continued for six hours. Then the Government forces drew off and it was prepared to the two remaining mines under the walls, each charged with one ton of TNT.

Official forecast for St. Louis is vicinity: Mostly cloudy and unsettled tonight and tomorrow, light showers probably tonight; continued cool tonight rising temperature to tomorrow.

Missouri: Mostly cloudy and unsettled tonight and tomorrow, light showers probably tonight; rising temperature to tomorrow.

Illinois: Partly cloudy and unsettled with scattered showers tonight and tomorrow; possibly light showers in southwest portion tonight slowly rising temperature tomorrow in northwest and west-central portion tonight.

Government Casualties.

Government dead were six, with 70 wounded as a result of an assault in the face of machine gun fire over the debris of what once was the home of Moorish and Castilian Kings and later one of the most famous military schools in Spain.

ARCTIC SHIPWRECK LAID TO NAVIGATION ERROR

Only Survivor of 39 Says Vessel Was Off Its Course Along Iceland Coast.

By the Associated Press. REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Sept. 18.—A mistake in navigation on the part of the experienced officers in command was said last night to have caused the foundering of the 449-ton French exploration ship Pourquoi Pas in which 39 lives were lost, including that of Capt. Jean Charcot, Arctic explorer.

The vessel went on the rocks and sank Wednesday with all hands save one, Eugene Gouidec, a quartermaster who told of the events leading up to the disaster.

Gouidec said that the vessel was off its course. Officers were trying to take bearings when the ship went on the jagged rocks of Iceland's bleak coast.

He was on the dog watch, Gouidec said, when he was sent below to get charts. An officer, he said, told him they were on the wrong course, having mistaken the Aranane lighthouse for Seltjarnarnes. Gouidec said he was below when the ship struck. The bow was cleanly broken off and the foremast snapped off to the deck.

Capt. Le Connait, the master, ordered all to try and save themselves. One by one the men leaped into the water and all except Gouidec either drowned or were dashed to death on the rocks.

Le Connait tried desperately to save the ship by hoisting sails after water had put the engines out of commission. The craft only bounced around helplessly, crashing into a rock known as "Inokki" which had been the doom of several ships in the past.

Gouidec said when he jumped he saw Charcot still standing on the bridge with Le Connait.

He and another sailor climbed on a floating gangway, but the waves washed him to his death.

Gouidec lost consciousness for about four hours and remembered only that he woke up in a farm house to which he had been carried from the beach where he was cast up.

Hoover, Hamilton, in Chicago. By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Former President Herbert Hoover arrived today to arrange a series of political speaking dates with members of the Republican National Committee. He traveled by train from New York with John D. Hamilton, chairman of the National Committee, and Harrison Spangler, executive vice-chairman of the committee.

WITNESS TELLS OF DISCLOSURES BY MRS. SCHAB

Says First Mrs. Howard Informed Her of Meetings With Second Husband Before Divorce.

MRS. L. F. BARROW GIVES TESTIMONY

Howard Says He Fainted After Scene With His First Wife in Hotel in Bermuda.

Mrs. Lyman F. Barrows of 344 Jefferson road, Webster Groves, testifying at Clayton today for Clarissa H. Howard Jr., told of a visit she and Howard's first wife made to New York in 1934, several months before the Howards were divorced, during which Mrs. Howard had several meetings with Harry P. Schaub of East Orange, N. J., whom she later married.

Howard, millionaire son of the late steel manufacturer and a director of the General Steel Castings Corporation, is resisting the efforts of his former wife to take their two young daughters with her to her present home in East Orange. He testified in Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller's court yesterday that she told him in Bermuda, in May, 1935, before the divorce, that she was then in love with her present husband.

Mrs. Barrows testified that on the train to New York Mrs. Schaub told her of having made a trip to Nantucket that summer and that she had seemed "very lonely and unhappy."

"She asked me if I would mind if she saw him while we were in New York and I told her it was none of my business," Mrs. Barrows testified. "One day she was gone all day and returned to our hotel room about 9 o'clock that evening. She told me she and Mr. Schaub had gone to church, then for a drive and to Coney Island. During our stay there she told me she met Mr. Schaub several times."

Howard Paid Fare. On cross-examination Mrs. Barrows said her husband, an insurance broker, was a lifelong friend of Howard's and that Howard had paid their steamship fare when the couple had him on the trip to Bermuda about which he testified yesterday.

Howard, in his testimony, told of a long conversation with his former wife early one morning in a Bermuda hotel room, in which she told him of her love for Schaub. He said he had begun the conversation because of an anonymous letter he had received which made him rush to Bermuda to question his wife.

Previous testimony by Mrs. Schaub and her husband had brought out that the two of them had been on the same boat together and in Bermuda at the same time. Schaub left a few days before Howard arrived.

Pictures Hotel Room Scene.

Under direct questioning by his attorney, Howard pictured the hotel room scene as follows: "We had been at a dance at the Bermudian Hotel and returned to our room shortly before midnight. I told my wife I believed there was something wrong between us and that she was doing things she had no right to do. I told her my reasons for thinking so and also about the anonymous letter. The result of our conversation was that my wife told me she was in love with Mr. Schaub, whom she had met in the summer of 1934 at Nantucket. She had seen him again in December in New York and once more in Philadelphia in January, 1935, when they had planned to take a trip to Bermuda together."

"I asked her why she hadn't told me about it and asked for a divorce and she said she didn't want a divorce until she had tried it out, and she wanted to wait before giving up what she already had for something else."

Says He Fainted.

"She said she was pleased with Mr. Schaub in Philadelphia, although I admit she didn't say she had gone to a hotel or anything. I asked her if she wasn't sorry and she said no, she was going to do it. We discussed the matter for two or three hours and then I became sick in my stomach and fainted."

After he was revived, Howard said he took a walk for about half an hour and that when he returned his wife was gone and he did not see her again in Bermuda. He returned to St. Louis on May 15.

Following Howard's testimony, Mrs. Mathilde Mueller, a maid for the Howards while they were still married, but now employed in the Mark C. Steinberg home on Warren road, took the stand and told of an incident she said she had observed in the Howard home in the early summer of 1932.

"Maid's Story." She said, "Mrs. Schaub told me not to answer the doorbell when it rang. As I went to my room, the bell rang and Mrs. Schaub answered and a man came in. Mrs. Schaub was dressed in negligee. They kissed each other five or six times. I didn't see any more and went to my room."

On cross-examination by former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, Miss Mueller was unable to fix the date of the alleged incident. She said she

He was at the top of the stairway when she turned back to look. She was unable to describe the man other than to say he was of medium height and had on a blue suit.

"You knew most of the Howards' friends?" Caulfield asked. "Yes" was the answer.

"Had you ever seen this man before?" "No."

Never Told Before.

Miss Mueller, under questioning by Caulfield, then said that she had never told anyone, neither Howard, his attorney, or Mrs. Schaub, of the incident. She said she was in Charlevoix, Mich., this summer with the Steinbergs when Howard came over from nearby Harbor Point and asked her to testify.

Mrs. Barrows testified that on the train to New York Mrs. Schaub told her of having made a trip to Nantucket that summer and that she had seemed "very lonely and unhappy."

"She asked me if I would mind if she saw him while we were in New York and I told her it was none of my business," Mrs. Barrows testified. "One day she was gone all day and returned to our hotel room about an hour and a half. Mrs. Schaub said to her: 'Would your feelings be hurt if I left you to meet Harry?'

She said in the autumn of 1934 Mrs. Schaub told her if she might receive some letters at her house. "Mrs. Schaub told me there would be nothing in them," Mrs. Woods continued, "that there would be only a few, and they would arrive from Newark. There was about one a week and then they picked up to two and three a week."

Asked Her to Stop Letters.

"Then I asked Mrs. Schaub to stop them and told her she wasn't doing fair to her husband. Mrs. Schaub said that they were perfectly innocent and that there was nothing to them."

On cross-examination today, Mrs. Woods testified that Howard had paid her way on the Bermuda trip and also on one previous trip she had taken there with Mrs. Schaub. She said that shortly before Howard's second marriage this spring she gave a party for him and his fiancee.

"Do you have any animosity toward Mrs. Schaub?" Caulfield asked. "Yes, I do," she replied.

"You don't like her?" "No, I don't."

Sidney L. Weber, 7141 Washington avenue, University City, testified that he was called to Howard's room in Bermuda after Howard had fainted. He briefly corroborated Howard's account of what had happened and said he asked Mrs. Schaub, "Is this true?" and she answered, "Yes, I feel justified in what I've done."

On cross-examination he said Howard owned half of the capital stock of $50,000 of his automobile company and that Howard also paid his way to Bermuda.

The widow, Miss Ethel Jones, former governor of the Howard children, testified she had been employed by Howard for six and a half years. She denied she had followed Mrs. Schaub, as the latter testified.

"I asked her why she hadn't told me about it and asked for a divorce and she said she didn't want a divorce until she had tried it out, and she wanted to wait before giving up what she already had for something else."

Says He Fainted.

"She said she was pleased with Mr. Schaub in Philadelphia, although I admit she didn't say she had gone to a hotel or anything. I asked her if she wasn't sorry and she said no, she was going to do it. We discussed the matter for two or three hours and then I became sick in my stomach and fainted."

OUSTED CHICAGO COURT CLERK IS INDICTED AS EMBEZZLER

Accused of Taking $22,000 in Escrow Funds; Will Surrender, His Lawyer Says.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—An indictment charging Frank V. Zintak, clerk of the Superior Court of Cook County (Chicago), with embezzeling $22,560 in escrow funds was returned today before Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley.

He was twice widely supported for appointment to the bench of the Federal District Court. His name was considered for the first time in 1919, for the appointment which President Wilson decided to bestow on Judge Charles B. Faris. Early in 1935, when Judge Faris was promoted by President Roosevelt, to the Circuit Court of Appeals, an urgent recommendation in behalf of Williams was made by a group of lawyers, including seven full-time faculty members of Washington University School of Law. George H. Moore, a former office associate of Williams, received the appointment, through the insistence of Senator Bennett C. Clark.

Chairman Williams resides at 6235 Washington avenue.

MRS. ROOSEVELT IMPROVING

Directed, However, to Remain in Bed Over Week-End.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, suffering from an attack of influenza, was reported improved this morning by Dr. Ross T. McIntire, the White House physician.

Dr. McIntire telephoned the President at Cambridge, Mass., however, that Mrs. Roosevelt should remain in bed over the week-end. Roosevelt changed his plans, arranging to return directly to Washington instead of going to his Hyde Park (N. Y.) home. Dr. McIntire said Mrs. Roosevelt's fever was reduced this morning.

Deputy sheriffs were detailed to guard the office against any attempt Zintak might make to perform the duties of clerk or to remove records. Zintak disappeared Wednesday.

GETS 5 YEARS FOR ROBBERY

William Pruet, 18, of Tennessee, Pleads Guilty.

William Pruet, 18 years old, of the three designated days. After this registration there will be no other until at least 15 days after the presidential election.

Qualifications for voters both in city and county are that they must be citizens, 21 years old, who have resided in the State for at least one year and in the city, or county, at least 60 days before the election, and who have registered.

All Who Wish to Vote Nov. 3 Must Put Their Names on Poll Books.

The general quadrennial registration of St. Louis voters will be held in the city's 870 precincts next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday between 8 a. m. and 9 p. m. All persons desiring to vote in the general election of Nov. 3 must register, since law requires registration records to be made before each presidential election.

In St. Louis County the first registration under the new permanent registration law will be conducted Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 3. Once registered the voter need not register again unless his name is struck off the books for some reason. The 194 precinct polling places will be open from 8 a. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Agitation for permanent registration in St. Louis resulted recently in the appointment by Mayor Dickmann of a special committee to draft a suitable bill for presentation to the next Legislature.

Each voter registering in the county must sign three cards containing identical information concerning age, place and length of residence, and personal appearance.

One card of each registrant will be placed in a central file and the others will be bound in books for use by precinct election officials.

On election day voters will not be required to sign their names for compulsion, who can record unless challenged by an official in case of challenge the person desiring to vote must prove identity.

The law provides methods for revising the registration lists between elections. Additions may be made, names of persons who die or move from the county may be struck off and transfers may be made by persons who have moved to another precinct within the county.

As in the city, those wishing to vote Nov. 3, must register on one of the three designated days. After this registration there will be no other until at least 15 days after the presidential election.

Qualifications for voters both in city and county are that they must be citizens, 21 years old, who have resided in the State for at least one year and in the city, or county, at least 60 days before the election, and who have registered.

the other three; I talked to Mr. Williams," he said. Singleton's acceptance was the last one to be received. It came last night.

Removals Result of Complaints Following Post-Dispatch Expose.

The Governor, in removing the members of the Election Board, acted on a series of requests and complaints received by him since the Post-Dispatch exposure of wholesale registration frauds, beginning July 22.

These complaints were on two grounds—first, responsibility of all of the board members for the registration frauds; second, as to Waechter, Democratic chairman, and Moore, Republican secretary, charges that they were active in behalf of factional candidates in the primary, and acted in a spirit of partiality to those candidates and against the rival candidates.

The Post-Dispatch began, Sept. 8, a series of exposures of fraudulent voting in the riverfront bond issue election of Sept. 10, 1935. It has shown that in each of the 18 wards returned as giving a vote of more than the necessary two-thirds for the bond issue, and in one other ward, fraudulent returns were made, and "No" votes were not counted as cast. In each of the wards, canvasses of selected precincts brought affidavits from voters that they had voted against the bonds, in greater number than the "No" vote officially shown for those precincts. The number of affidavits needed to discredit the returns was obtained, in most of the precincts, by the time one-half the voters had been checked.

Chairman Waechter, after publication of the fact as to the bond issue election frauds, expressed the view that there was "not much to" the exposure, and said he did not look on the matter so seriously as some did.

Ships at Sea Send SOS

Two ships send SOS calls and Norfolk headquarters of the Coast Guard sent cutters to their aid.

With the New Jersey-New York area in the path of the storm, the New York area of the Coast Guard ordered cutters to stand by for emergencies. Wind velocities of 75 miles an hour were predicted by the Weather Bureau for the New York area tonight.

The Red Cross, anticipating call for aid, was preparing to send doctors, nurses and supplies into the storm areas.

The two ships in distress are the Chesapeake light vessel, posted off Cape Henry, Va., which sent an SOS when its anchors slipped, and El Almirante, a freighter which was disabled by a leaking steam valve off Wilmington, Del.

The cutter Mendota, having brought in the coal barge Hercules from off Cape Henry to Hampton Roads, went back to sea and stood by the lightship.

The cutter Modoc went to the aid of El Almirante, which was reported 60 miles south of Cape Hatteras.

Ship windows were caved in at Norfolk early today and from the surrounding countryside other reports of wind damage were received.

Resort areas up and down the coast were evacuated late yesterday and last night, but there was concern for the safety of some 1500 residents on the Hatteras banks, a 35-mile stretch of the inland chain which serves as a bulwark to protect the shore proper from tides. There was no immediate means of communication with the sparsely settled communities, inhabited mostly by fishermen and their families.

Damage at Elizabeth City.

R. R. Roper, District highway maintenance engineer, returned to Edenton, N. C., from a survey between there and the Virginia line, and said that damage in the Elizabeth City area was far less than that inflicted by a similar storm in 1933. Roper said crops suffered heavily, a few trees were blown down, and that store fronts in Elizabeth City were broken, but that he heard of no fatalities or serious injuries.

Several hundred Government airplanes were removed from Langley Field, Va., to inland bases in Pennsylvania, North Carolina and Georgia.

Waves lashed over the new million-dollar sea wall at Fort Monroe, Va. More than 400 families on exposed Willoughby Spit, Va., left their cottages after midnight when the wind rose steadily from 32 miles an hour, but 40 chose to remain there.

The liner Monarch of Bermuda, with 690 passengers, reported it was riding out the storm at anchor off

Charleston, S. C. It was to have reached New York at noon today.

Hurricane 10 Years Ago.

Ten years ago today a hurricane hit the east coast of Florida and moved inland to Alabama and Mississippi, killing 372 persons and injuring 6281. More than 5000 houses were destroyed and 17,884 families were left temporarily homeless. The greatest damage was at Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood and Hialeah, Fla.

On Sept. 2, 1926, a hurricane swept the Morgan liner Dixie, bound from New Orleans to New York, on a coral reef on the east coast of Florida, 60 miles south of Miami. Other ships took off the 221 passengers and crew of 121. The storm, moving over Florida, destroyed several road-construction camps of war veterans along the Florida Keys, killing 400 persons. Of the dead about 200 were men on Federal relief.

Rescue Workers Busy Aiding Small Craft Along Jersey Shore.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 18.—High season battered the New Jersey coast today as the hurricane swept northward.

Every inlet but one on 70 miles of Central New Jersey coast was closed by the pounding seas, and boats were wrecked at the one exception—the Manasquan River inlet between Brielle and Point Pleasant Beach.

Four men were rescued last night from a disabled 48-foot yacht as a crowd estimated at 10,000 watched from the Atlantic City boardwalk. Motorboat racing drivers braved high seas to aid Joseph Smith, 28 years old, of Collingswood, after he was washed from the stern of the yacht and lost his life preserver.

Several water circus performers shoved off in small boats with outboard motors and rescued the other three men from the Elsanbill, owned by William Price of Collingswood and Philadelphia.

Smith was taken to a hospital with leg injuries, but Price, Capt. Richard Arnold and a helper were uninjured.

Two boats were wrecked and nine persons plunged into the water at the Manasquan River inlet when the disturbance advancing ahead of the hurricane whipped up the waves yesterday.

Surfman Arnold Petersen of the Manasquan Coast Guard station was rescued after a wave swept him off a patrol boat.

The fishing boat Paramount, whose officers were decorated for their rescue work in the Morro Castle disaster, aided in the rescue.

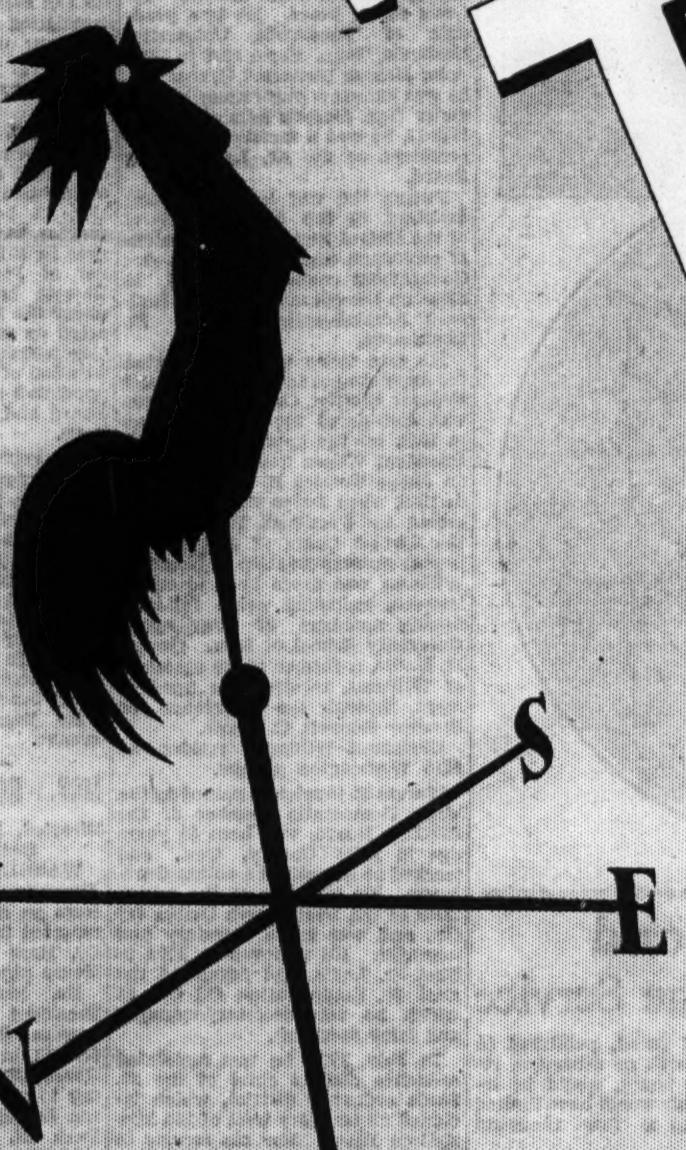

Victor Erickson of Point Pleasant and a party of five fishermen were rescued by Coast Guardsmen after his 26-foot skiff upset in the inlet.

F. C. Head of Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., suffered leg injuries when he was thrown overboard as his 40-foot runabout hit the jetty on the north side of the inlet. A Coast Guard patrol boat rescued him.

Surfman Charles G. Austin of the Manasquan station was injured when he fell overboard in effecting the rescue.

"TOPS"

It began in 1908, when a young fellow in Ohio gave precedent a lusty boot. Those were the days when a hand painted dinner set went with every suit. And prices were figured 50-50—half for the crockery, half for the clothes!

Now that didn't make sense. Our friend from Ohio had no particular yen for cups and saucers. He wanted a modestly priced suit that would stand up after the first high wind. And he had a hunch that plenty of men voted the same way.

So he did something about it. He opened the first Bond store!

It went over like a ton of bricks. Soon there were two stores, then five, then a dozen. And as the word got around, the demand for Bond clothes became so big that we had to build our own factory. Again, we were able to strip a lot of good round dollars from prices. The profits we'd been paying to outside makers went into the pockets of Bond customers. Our business doubled!

And that set the stage for the climax—factory number two, in Rochester. Here was a radical step. Rochester tailored clothes were known to be the finest, and most expensive, in America. It was our job to maintain this reputation for quality—but to take it out of the luxury class. We did it, because our Rochester clothes are sold through our own stores—something no other retailer has ever done!

Today, the editors of the leading Men's Wear paper* rate us "Tops"—the biggest clothiers in America. There are 3600 ace tailors on our payroll—over a million men on our list of customers.

It will pay you to check the Bond features which have won such a big hand. The best way, is to see our new Fall suits and topcoats. And the best time is right now—when selections are at the peak.

SHIPS PUT IN OUT OF STORM UNDER NEW SEA SAFETY LAW
Responsibility for Passengers is on Operators After Warnings Are Posted.
By the Associated Press.

U. S. DESTROYER LAUNCHED
Strike of 1500 Shipbuilders Had Delayed Event Two Days.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Three southbound passenger liners, anchored in Gravesend Bay today illustrated the working of the safety at-sea provisions of the 1936 Merchant Marine Act.

The Boringuen of the Puerto Rican Line, with 223 passengers for island ports; the Pastores of the Columbian Line, with 78 passengers on a West Indies cruise, and the Quirigua, bound for Kingston and Jamaica with 120 passengers, all sailed from New York yesterday, but anchored as soon as storm signals were flashed to them.

The legislation throws complete responsibility on steamship lines
for the safety of passengers on vessels venturing to sea after storm

warnings have been posted. Official of the three lines said the ships would stay in the bay until official word that the storm had passed. Six freighters also were anchored in the bay.

Strike of 1500 Shipbuilders Had Delayed Event Two Days.
NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The United States destroyer, Fanning, was launched today despite a strike of 1500 hands at the yards of the Staten Island Drydock Co. The strikers, who had delayed the launching two days, were kept outside the yards by 20 policemen. It was raining as the vessel slid down the ways into the high waves of the bay.

Miss Cora Marsh of New London, Conn., a great-great-granddaughter of the late Lieut. Nathaniel

Fanning after whom the ship was named, broke a bottle of champagne across its bow. The launching was done by nonunion mechanics regularly employed at the yard.

The legislation throws complete
responsibility on steamship lines
for the safety of passengers on vessels venturing to sea after storm

warnings have been posted. Official
of the three lines said the
ships would stay in the bay until official word that the storm had passed. Six freighters also were anchored in the bay.

There can be no doubt that many persons whose names appear on the books as of June 18, 1936, have since died and many others have moved and failed to transfer. As in every large city there is a population, considerable in any city, who are not listed in any city directory, living in "shelters," abandoned sheds, and buildings, and in some instances even box cars not otherwise in use. There are also many people employed as domes-stics and as day laborers whose addresses change from time to time with their employment. Many persons out of employment and at one time on the relief rolls and since dropped, have probably left the city to find sustenance elsewhere.
While people of this class are gaunt and hungry and oftentimes without a place to lay their heads, they are not "phantoms" or "ghosts" but human beings, under our laws entitled to the right of franchise. That many of these classes could not be found at the time of the re-census is not alone evidence of corruption on the part of the election commissioners.

These conditions have been set forth, not with the view of condoning the improper or unlawful acts of any election official, for there can be no doubt that there were irregularities; and I believe in and shall continue to insist upon honest elections. However, misrepresentations of the true situation have been made with a view of obtaining partisan advantage and a sort of hysteria followed resulting in the indictment and arrest of citizens who were not judges of the election for offenses as judges of the election.

My attention has been called to the fact that the returns from certain precincts indicated a strange unanimity on the part of the voters in their choice of candidates. The following tables would indicate that whatever may be the reason, like conditions existed to some extent in the August primaries of 1920, 1928, and 1932.

In the 1928 primary, figures from nine precincts showed topheavy votes for Becker for the Republican nomination for Governor, and for
L. D. Thompson for Treasurer. The largest disparity shown in the 1932
list was in the Fourteenth Ward, fourth precinct, which was shown as giving Becker 26, E. H. Winter
5, Thompson 206 and W. T. Findly

175; the most any of his opponents got in any precinct was 14.

In the same primary, a one-sided
vote in six precincts for the Republican nomination for Secretary of State was shown. In five of the precincts, Charles U. Becker got nearly all the votes: in one, E. S.
Austin got 174 to Becker's 4 and another candidate's 3. Figures from the same precincts for the Republican nominations for Governor,
Senator, Lieutenant-Governor,
State Auditor and State Treasurer
were given. For Governor, E. E. Mc-Kinney was favored in five of the precincts. In one, Arthur M.
Hyde in one; for Senator, there was a similar division between Selden P. Spencer and Dwight F.
Davis. Davis got 178 votes in one precinct, 1 in the next one listed,
and none in the next.

In the 1928 primary, certain precincts were selected to show that Henry S. Caulfield, for the Republican nomination for Governor, Becker for Secretary of State, and favored candidates for other State offices got virtually all the votes
of those precincts.

For the 1932 primary, figures from

was a similar division between Sel-
den P. Spencer and Dwight F.
Davis. Davis got 178 votes in one
precinct, 1 in the next one listed,
and none in the next.

In the 1928 primary, certain precincts were selected to show that Henry S. Caulfield, for the Republican nomination for Governor, Becker for Secretary of State, and
favored candidates for other State offices got virtually all the votes
of those precincts.

For the 1932 primary, figures from
nine precincts showed topheavy
votes for Becker for the Republican nomination for Governor, and for
L. D. Thompson for Treasurer. The
largest disparity shown in the 1932
list was in the Fourteenth Ward,
fourth precinct, which was shown as
giving Becker 26, E. H. Winter
5, Thompson 206 and W. T. Findly

175; the most any of his opponents
got in any precinct was 14.

In the same primary, a one-sided
vote in six precincts for the Republican nomination for Secretary of
precincts, Charles U. Becker got nearly all the votes: in one, E. S.
Austin got 174 to Becker's 4 and another candidate's 3. Figures from the same precincts for the Republican nominations for Governor,
Senator, Lieutenant-Governor,
State Auditor and State Treasurer
were given. For Governor, E. E. Mc-Kinney was favored in five of the
precincts. In one, Arthur M.
Hyde in one; for Senator, there was a similar division between Sel-
den P. Spencer and Dwight F.
Davis. Davis got 178 votes in one
precinct, 1 in the next one listed,
and none in the next.

28 HARVARD MEN ASSAIL REPORT ON SACCO, VANZETTI

Ask Fellow Alumni to 'Discover What Happened to Mental Processes of Alma Mater's President.'

LOWELL GROUP HELD DEFENDANTS GUILTY

Pamphlet 'Walled in This Tomb' Alleges Discrepancies in Finding Against Condemned Men in 1927.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Twenty-eight alumni of Harvard University asked all fellow alumni today to study the record of the Lowell Committee in the Sacco-Vanzetti case "and discover what happened to the mental processes of their alma mater's president."

Their statement, in the form of a pamphlet mailed throughout the country, was issued a few hours before President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell was scheduled to introduce President Roosevelt at the Harvard Tercentenary celebration.

Pamphlet 'Reviews Report.'

It reviewed the evidence considered by Dr. Lowell's committee at the request of the then Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, prior to the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti for the murder of Alessandro Berardelli, a payroll guard, in a South Braintree (Mass.) holdup in 1920.

The Lowell Committee in a 5500-word review of the evidence advised Gov. Fuller it considered both Sacco and Vanzetti guilty "beyond reasonable doubt." It characterized the alibi of Vanzetti as "decidedly weak, and describing eyewitness identification as "only a part of the evidence," said of Sacco, "He looks so much like one of the gang who committed the murder that a number of witnesses are sure that he is the man."

Alleged discrepancies in the report prepared in 1927 by Dr. Lowell, then president of Harvard; the late Samuel W. Stratton, then president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Robert Grant, former Massachusetts Probate Judge, are set forth in the pamphlet, entitled "Walled in This Tomb."

"Incredible Twist of Mind."

"In anything but a captious mood," said the foreword of the statement, "we urge the alumni of Harvard to go to the record of the Sacco-Vanzetti case and discover what happened to the mental processes of their alma mater's president. He enjoyed the reputation of being one of the nation's foremost intellectual leaders when he was gripped by the pressure of forces similar to those which are sweeping all the continents today on a far greater scale than in 1927."

"Out of such discovery will come an awareness of the incredible and destructive twists of men's minds—even the mind of a President of Harvard University."

"This cannot fail, in our opinion, to be of value in the struggle to keep this nation from being torn asunder by that mass unreason which has been so skillfully developed by power-mad individuals and cliques in Europe."

"No one looking at the fate of intellectual and cultural pursuits in Germany and Italy can escape an intense feeling of the immediate peril confronting our own universities."

SOME OF SIGNERS OF PAMPHLET.
Among the signers of the statement were Charles Angoff, former editor of the American Mercury; George Biddle, Philadelphia artist; Newton Arvin, Northampton, Mass., biographer of Nathaniel Hawthorne; Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist; Stuart Chase, economist and author; Malcolm Cowley, associate editor of the New Republic; John Dos Passos, novelist; Osmond K. Fraenkel, author of "The Sacco-Vanzetti Case"; Powers Hapgood, associate of John L. Lewis in organizing the Committee for Industrial Organization, and John Brooks Wheelwright, Boston poet.

Steel Mill Employees at Youngstown Make Reply to Refusal of Wage Increase.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 18.—Carnegie-Illinois steel workers in the Youngstown district proposed yesterday that stock-owning employees be represented at the next stockholders' meeting in an effort to obtain a wage increase.

The proposal was contained in a formal reply by the so-called "company union" representatives in the Youngstown district to President R. F. Fairless' refusal of a wage increase.

The letter proposes refinancing the preferred stock with shares paying a lower rate of interest, in order to make more money available for wages and possible for dividends, and also lowering of high salaries and pensions.

NEW DEAL BETRAYED COUNTRY, SAYS COLBY

Wilson's Secretary of State Urges "Thoughtful" Democrats to Back Landon.

By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State in the Wilson administration, said last night that the present leaders of the Democratic party were " betrayers not only of a great party, but of the country itself."

Addressing a Constitution day celebration sponsored by five New York Republican clubs, Colby urged "the thoughtful Democrats of the country" to unite with the Republicans and help to elect Gov. Alfred M. Landon.

"As a Democrat," he said, "I brand the party which still boasts the name as un-democratic in every essential of democratic faith and practice."

"Its hostility to American principles is revealed in its every act and utterance. Its disloyalty to the Constitution and its determination to undermine and eventually overthrow it is as plain as any fact can be."

He said he was thankful that the Republican party, "rededicated to the patriotic service of the country, is available in this hour of need as an organizing force for putting down this treasonable conspiracy to overthrow our government."

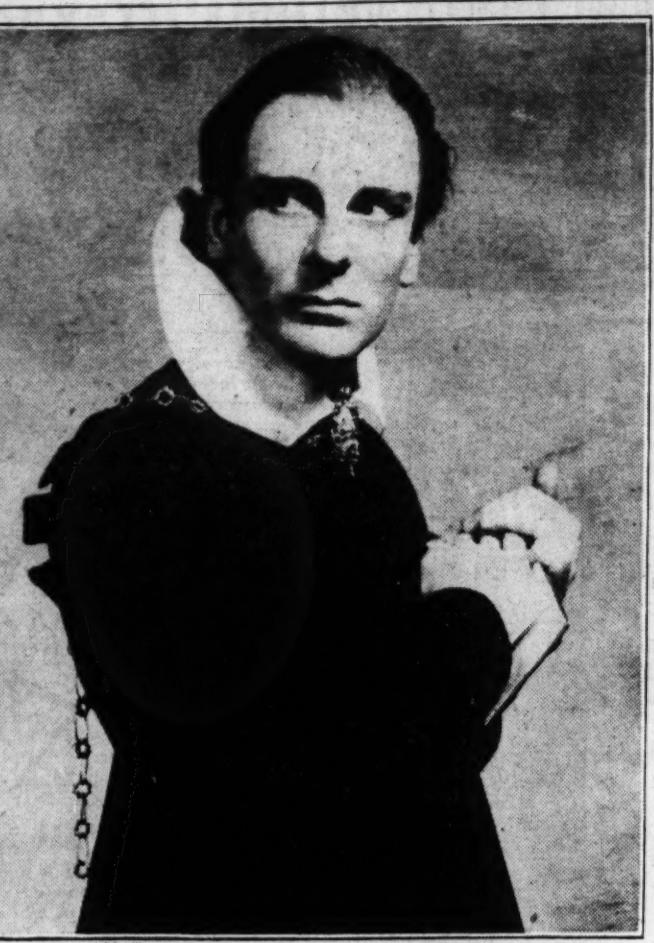

"And as a Democrat," he continued, "I hope to see whole-hearted and ungrudging co-operation between American Republicans and the great number of Democrats throughout the land who are Americans first and above all party ties."

"To that union, the thoughtful Democrats of the country, who are ashamed of their party and its record and scandalized by its disloyalty to the Constitution and the time honored institutions of freedom, bring you their support and co-operation."

Their numbers will surpass any calculation I have yet seen.

FEDERAL GAME AGENTS HOLD SESSIONS HERE

Plan Winter Campaign Against Illegal Fur Shippers and Pot Hunters.

About 75 United States game agents—G-men of the woods, swamp and slough—from every state in the Union, are meeting at the Mayfair Hotel to draft a plan of campaign for the fall and winter season and to discuss new problems and regulations.

Most of them are grizzled, slow-speaking outdoor-looking men, seeming not quite accustomed to their gray gabardine summer uniforms with Sam Browne belts, which they generally wear only to court or meetings like this.

Like other Government agents, they have law-breakers to cope with, Stanley P. Young, chief of the Division of Game Management, United States Bureau of Biological Survey, told a reporter.

Chief offenders are the duck bootleggers, and the wild game and fur interstate smugglers. It is against the Migratory Bird Act to sell any migratory fowl, but there are professional hunters throughout the country who make a living shooting wild ducks and geese and selling them to hotels, night clubs and restaurants, Young says. He pointed out that the restaurant or night club owner buying such fowl is equally guilty under the law and subject to punishment up to six months' imprisonment and a $500 fine.

Prison for Duck Bootleggers.

One man shipped about 1500 ducks a month from Virginia for sale to restaurants and night clubs this year, Young said. He is serving three years in the penitentiary on a conspiracy charge.

The Division of Game Management is also charged with enforcement of the Lacey Act, which prohibits interstate shipment of game and furs taken in violation of state laws.

"Illegal fur shippers are causing us the most trouble," Young said. "And we're going to concentrate on them this fall and winter. They trap for animals out of season in illegal numbers, particularly beaver and otter on which there is an all-year closed season in many states, and ship them to market across state lines. They aren't farmer boys, ignorant of the laws, but men making a business of it."

Illegal Traffic in Deer.

There was a large traffic in deer bagged in illegal numbers, and out of season and sold to night clubs, restaurants and hotels, he said. Recently three men in Michigan were caught shipping deer by the automobile load to Chicago. They had seven deer in one load. Many of the methods of game bootleggers are reminiscent of those of liquor bootleggers. They hide quail in automobile hub-caps and ducks in spare tires.

The chief changes for hunters to be mindful of are that canvasback and redhead duck are taboo this year, that migratory water-fowl may not be hunted by means of baited traps or live decoys, and that in Missouri and Illinois the open season on ducks, geese, jack-snipe and coot has been changed to Nov. 1 to Nov. 30, according to F. P. Callaghan, in charge of enforcement. Jacksnipe may now be shot from 7 a. m. to sunset instead of from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m., and the regulation limiting hunting to within 100 feet from shore or visible vegetation has been removed.

The meeting, the sessions of which are closed, has been in progress since Wednesday and will end tomorrow.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

EX-SENATOR PEPPER DENOUNCES NEW DEAL

Says Trouble "Is Not Lack of Brains but Deficiency of Moral Fiber."

By the Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—Declaring that New Deal leaders have endorsed "what is in substance a complete economic dictatorship," former United States Senator George Wharton Pepper asserted that under the present administration the individual is "deprived of his liberty in advance."

"Under the American system," Pepper said in a Constitution day address at the Union League, the individual "is left free to act and punishes only when he abuses his freedom."

"Under the American system, character has a chance to develop and enterprise a chance to grow. Under the New Deal, character is at a discount and enterprise is hampered and stifled at every stage of its progress."

Pepper declared that the trouble with President Roosevelt and other advocates of the New Deal "is not lack of brains, but deficiency of moral fiber."

"If you take the acts and utterances of Roosevelt, of Wallace, of Tugwell and of all the motley array of loose thinkers and loud speakers, you will find them declaring for what is in substance a complete economic dictatorship."

"The New Deal was conceived in stealth; it was born in cunning and it has been nurtured by misrepresentation."

"If Roosevelt had announced in advance of the election the program which he was then maturing, he could not have won a vote of confidence from the American people. The vote that he received was in large measure cast in reliance upon promises since broken."

"Of Pennsylvania, Pepper said: "Never again may we have a Governor whose words and acts are dictated from Washington, who behaves in all respects like a pro-consult commission by a Roman Emperor and who submits to the General Assembly statutes which bear internal evidence that they have been drafted in Washington and sent to Harrisburg for enactment."

Alleged Embroider Surrenders

By the Associated Press

WINDSOR, Ontario, Sept. 18.—Duncan B. McColli, Public Utilities official, wanted on a charge of embezzlement, surrendered to police last night. He had been missing since Tuesday night. He is accused of embezzling $35,000 from the Hydro-Electric System of the town of Walkerville, now with Greater Windsor.

WARD ASKS FOR RECOUNT IN MICHIGAN PRIMARY
Former Washington Representative of Social Justice Union Wins Governor.

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—Louis B. Ward, candidate for the Democratic Senatorial nomination in the recent Michigan primary, notified Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald by telegram today that he would demand a recount. On the basis of unofficial returns, Ward was trailing Congressman Prentiss M. Brown by 3960 votes, with 34 precincts unreported.

Ward asked the Governor to notify custodians of ballot boxes that votes cast in the contest must be preserved. He said that while the filing fee of $17,335 was more than six times the cost of his entire campaign the expense would be gladly borne by his supporters.

Ward is a former Washington representative of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice.

BLACK LEGION MAN SAYS CHIEF MADE HIM KILL POOLE

Dayton Dean, Executioner for the Society, Testifies
It Was Either Shoot or Be Shot.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 18.—Dayton Dean testified in an emotionless voice today that he shot Charles A. Poole to death before a group of Black Legion members "because I knew if I didn't shoot, Davis would shoot me."

Harvey Davis, a Colonel in the terrorist society, is one of 12 men charged with murder and kidnapping in connection with the killing last May 12 of the young WPA worker.

Dean, who already has pleaded guilty, was the last State witness in the trial of the others, all of whom he swears were connected in one way or another with the killing.

Plan of Poole Ignored.

Dean told of "letting Poole have it" a stele bewildered victim pleaded for a chance to explain that his abductors' accusation of wife beating was false.

"Davis said, 'you're a dirty, — You know you beat up your wife and kicked her and put her in the hospital,'" Dean testified.

"Poole said, 'boys, there must be some mistake. I never —.' Davis interrupted and told him to shut up. 'You'll never live to do it again,' Davis says.

"I glanced around and I thought I had better start shooting and carrying out my orders. So I opened up with both guns and Poole sank to the ground."

Tells of Threat Against Law.

"Davis said for Lee (Ervin D. Lee, another of the defendants) and me to bend over and see if Poole was dead. We did, and Poole was pretty dead all right. Davis said for everyone to get back to the cars and be quick about it. 'And remember if the law tries to stop you let them have it,' he said."

"Did you have a grudge against Poole?" asked Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea.

"No," Dean replied. "I had to shoot or get shot myself. In the Black Legion you obey orders."

Dean accused Davis as the ring leader in the killing. Davis and the others are charged with participation in the plot to lure Poole to the roadside where he met his death. A routine investigation of the killing disclosed the first evidence of the Black Legion's existence.

Mr. Poole, the mother of two children, was a State witness yesterday. She denied gossip that her husband had beaten her when she was an expectant mother, a story which Dean said inspired the "straightening out party" of Black Legion members that resulted in Poole's death.

WANDERING WOMAN RETURNED

Mrs. Helen Marquette Says She Was Unable to Remember.

Mrs. Helen Marquette, 4706B Kensington place, who failed to return home to her five children Monday after starting to a grocery, was taken home yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kissling, 1110 East Ober avenue, friends, with whom she had been staying since Tuesday.

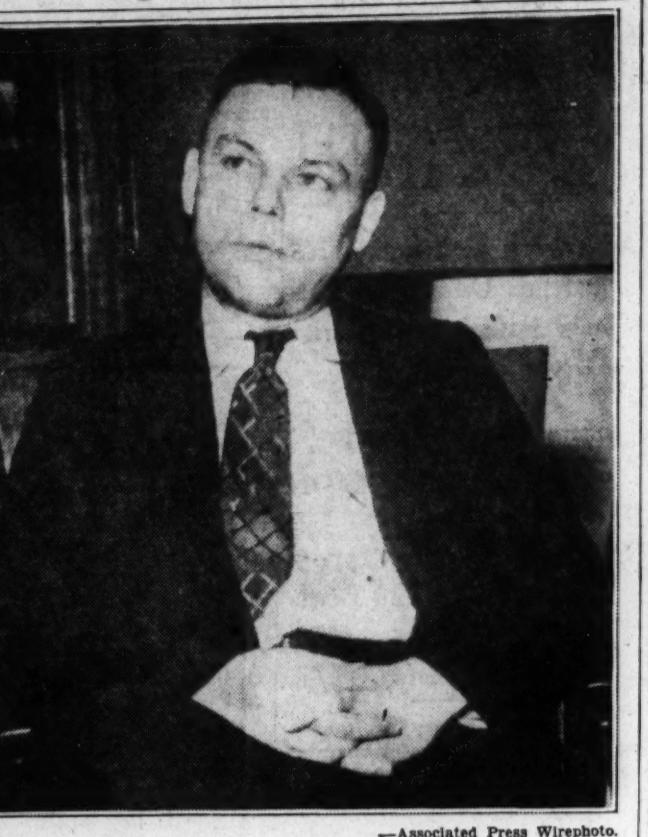

Kissling said Mrs. Marquette told him her children had gone to the country to visit an aunt and that she wished to visit the Kisslings. The latter, on reading newspaper accounts of her disappearance, notified police. Mrs. Marquette said she was unable to remember her movements, except that she walked about the city all day Monday and spent the night in a waiting room at Union Station.

With efficient canvassers at work, there can be little padded registration without the actual help of householders. To pad the registration lists a householder must certify to canvassers that fictitious persons live in the house. We plan to make the householder responsible for his or her statements and, if the statements are false, to punish the offender."

Members of the subcommittee present at yesterday's meeting were City Counselor E. H. Wayman, chairman; John B. Edwards, former Republican member of the Board of Election Commissioners; Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic City Committee; Fred Pape, chairman of the Republican City Committee; Miss Jeanne Blythe of the League of Women Voters, and John L. Weatherford of the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce. None of the Election Board was present.

When he named the committee Mayor Dickmann said that if it agreed on a bill he would urge enactment of it by the Legislature. Permanent registration has been advocated as a means of checking registration and voting irregularities.

How to Overcome Summer Rash, Chafing or Skin Irritations

Always at this time of the year summer rash, pimples, chafing and skin irritations are apt to prove annoying and embarrassing. However, they can be easily relieved by the use of a little Ice-Mint which may be obtained from your druggist at small cost. Ice-Mint is a very cooling, soothing preparation which is especially helpful to those suffering from any unpleasant summer skin irritations. Try it. Ice-Mint is highly recommended and there is nothing better for either children or adults.

The Mayor appointed the committee after the recent exposure by the Post-Dispatch of registration frauds in St. Louis, naming 17 members of the Board of Election Commissioners.

The subcommittee had before it copies of permanent registration laws enacted in 10 states. It was decided to supply each member of the subcommittee with a copy of the bill drafted by the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce and to assign each member to study one of the other laws and report on any desirable features that should be included in the St. Louis bill.

TELLS OF PACT TO BUY ONLY UNION-MINED TIFF

Former Company Manager Gives Deposition in Strike Injunction Hearing.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POTOSI, Mo., Sept. 18.—Depositions of some of the leaders of the current tiff miners' strike in Washington County, called in an attempt to create a closed shop in the tiff fields, have been taken by the National Pigments &amp; Chemical Co. in support of its attempt to obtain a permanent injunction to restrain interference with its activities.

Depositions, taken at Farmington, based on litigation between the company and the International Union of Mine, Mill &amp; Smelter Workers, included testimony by A. E. Stocking, former local manager of the company and still a stockholder in the National Lead Co., of which the pigments concern is a subsidiary, that he signed an agreement with the union to buy only union-mined tiff.

Stocking, who is now an independent operator and farmer, volunteered the information he had been dismissed by the company in 1934, denied that he knew the company had refused to enter into such an agreement at the time he signed it and replied in the negative to subsequent questions which sought to show he was trying to form a business alliance with the union. He was taken at length over his 20 years in the tiff fields, detailing marketing and mining methods and price.

Purpose of Closed Shop.

Testimony of union leaders, designed by the company to show that some of them were not bona fide tiff miners, was to the effect that the closed shop policy was decided on partly to restrict digging to residents of the vicinity in order to eliminate floaters who would dig at various times and then go on to the harvest fields or some other activity.

George Cole of Denver, Colo., organizer for the union, asserted he came to Washington County on Aug. 3, last, after receiving information the local unions had taken a strike vote. His instructions, he said, were to attempt to avert the strike.

Action of the National Pigments Co. in declining to sign the contract offered by the union—which would entail buying only from union men—he construed as failure to recognize the union. The company's refusal, Cole recalled, included the statement that such an agreement would be in restraint of trade.

Order for Lawful Strike.

While he announced at a subsequent meeting that the strike was in effect, the union leader said he did not suggest arrangement for the strike or for its conduct and did not know if it had been sanctioned by the international officers. He conceded he instructed the men "to conduct this strike lawfully," said he did not know if some union members were floaters.

Other witnesses included local union officers, including A. H. Schrumpf, one of 45 defendants in the case brought by the company, and president of the Washington County Tiff Workers' Council, composed of representatives of the various locals.

During a lengthy examination Schrumpf said he had dug but little tiff since January and admitted that he once served about six years of a 20-year penitentiary sentence on his plea of guilty of the killing of Gen. Gibson and Monte Hall in Iron Mountain Lake.

A colorful witness was elderly George Bourbon, a tiff digger in the city for 47 years, who was asked about occurrences at Bottom Diggings and other points where non-union miners were dissuaded by union men from working. The company says force was used; the union contends its methods were peaceable.

Stories of Miners.

Telling of heading a committee which talked to some diggers, Bourbon related, in part:

"I knew them all and I explained to them what we was after and says 'we are building a good strong union here' and I says 'the time has passed that every man has to operate single—it means it is defending the rights of your wife and children."

One elderly man, Bourbon said, observed that "It is a shame, I am getting old and I am mining tiff all my life and I can't feed my family" while another said he couldn't afford to pay the union dues which average 50 cents a month.

The majority of the diggers, Bourbon said, agreed to join the union but there were "two little boys sitting back on a log" who were reluctant.

They says—'we don't understand,'" Bourbon testified, saying he replied: "Well, you are young. You will."

Safety Record at Illinois Quarry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The Bureau of Mines announced today the Krause No. 1 quarry, near Columbia, Ill., had the best 1935 safety record of any entered in a contest conducted by the bureau in co-operation with the National Crushed Stone Association. The Krause quarry, owned by the Columbia Quarry Co., operated 167,671 man-hours without a lost-time accident. The Cape Girardeau limestone quarry, Cape Girardeau, Mo., will get honorable mention.

GEN. M'ALEXANDER
'ROCK OF MARNE' DIESNoted for Firm Resistance to Last Big German Push on Western Front.

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 18.—
Major-General Ulysses Grant Mc-Alexander, known as "The Rock of the Marne," died unexpectedly at his home here today. He was 72 years old."The Rock of the Marne" was the name bestowed upon Major-General (he was then Colonel) Mc-Alexander for the gallant stand he and his men made in the face of the final great battle of the Marne.When they realized the importance of the position to which they were assigned, Col. McAlexander and all his officers and men pledged themselves to stick to their post and to either die or go to Germany as prisoners. The Colonel was woundedoffensive of the enemy in the second battle of the Marne.It was in the course of the Germans' second advance toward Paris, when the struggle became desperate in the Surmelin Valley, the men of the 38th occupying the key position.With the enemy making attack after attack for three days, July 15, 16 and 17, 1918, on that vital point, the position of Col. McAlexander and his men began to look precarious.Instructions from headquarters to the colonel read: "Fall back if you think best." His reply was, "I will hold my lines."At the end of the war, the Germans withdrew, their power spent, and the Allied counter-offensive against Soissons began, marking the turning point of the war.After the Surmelin Valley engagement Col. McAlexander was promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General and put in command of the 108th brigade, composed entirely of troops from Texas, and remained as its leader during the remainder of the war.

Gen. McAlexander was born at

Dundas, Minn., Aug. 30, 1864, the son of C. P. and Margaret McAlexander. He was named Ulysses.

He had served with distinction

in that battle on July 16 and suffered a second wound a week later in another brush with the Germans.
Gen. Hunter Liggett, commander of the American troops on the Western front, paid high tribute to Col.
McAlexander and his men, saying they had performed a service that ranked among the great military deeds of all time. One of his fellow officers was credited with having been the first to dub the Col."The Rock of the Marne" for the determined stand he had taken.After the Surmelin Valley engagement Col. McAlexander was promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General and put in command of the 108th brigade, composed entirely of troops from Texas, and remained
as its leader during the remainder of the war.

Gen. McAlexander was born at

Dundas, Minn., Aug. 30, 1864, the son of C. P. and Margaret McAlexander. He was named Ulysses.

He had served with distinction elected president of the University of of Missouri Student Assembly by a vote of 23 to 13 over Harold Thieman, Concordia. Nancy Lee Nelson, Kansas City, was chosen clerk and Charles Spencer, Pawnee, Ok., treasurer. Members of the Student cabinet include: George Hawkins, Web-

PREDICTS WAR IF DU PONTS ADVISE LANDON AS PRESIDENT
Gov. Earle of Pennsylvania Says Candidate Is in Hands of a Certain Few.
By the Associated Press.
SEAFORD, Del., Sept. 18.—Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania declared that if Gov. Alf M. Landon is elected President, "with his duPonts as advisers, it would be impossible" to keep the United States out of the "next European war."

Earle said Landon is a "nice man, but entirely in the hands of a certain few, including the duPonts, Morgan, Mellon and Pew."

THIRD VICTIM DIES AFTER AUTO COLLISION

Martin Steinmeyer Succumbs in Hospital — Coroner's Jury Holds Other Driver Responsible

Martin Steinmeyer, 22 years old, died yesterday at Alexian Brothers Hospital from injuries suffered Wednesday when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Steinmeyer of Pevely, were killed in a head-on collision between their automobile and another machine on Lemay Ferry road near Matteson School road in St. Louis County.

Clarence L. Johns of Festus, the other driver who was seriously hurt, was held responsible for the accident by a Coroner's jury which returned a verdict of criminal carelessness yesterday. Johns was unable to attend the inquest.

Walter Stokes, Negro, 907 Ohio avenue, who was walking near the highway when the accident occurred said that Johns' southbound machine passed him at a "good rate of speed" just before it collided at a curve with the automobile driven north by Martin Steinmeyer. The Johns car, the witness said, appeared to be straddling the center line of the four-lane highway. Both cars overturned.

The elder Steinmeyers, pinned by the wreckage, were dead when passers-by reached the machines; their son and Johns, who was driving alone, were taken to Alexian Brothers Hospital where the latter was found to have suffered a skull injury and fractured jaw. Martin Steinmeyer, with fractured skull and right leg, did not regain consciousness.

William Steinmeyer, a farmer, was 60 years old; his wife was 58. Johns, a tavern proprietor, is 34.

At the same curve in the road, Fred Walker and Doc Kelly were killed last October when the driver of their car, who was in flight from county deputies, attempted to make the turn at 90 miles an hour.

East St. Louis Boy Bicyclist Seriously Injured.

Carl Musser, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Musser of 1110 Tudor avenue, East St. Louis, was seriously injured yesterday when the bicycle he was riding crashed into a parked machine and was thrown through a rear window. According to police, the driver of the machine did not stop.

Musser and three companions were returning home from East St. Louis High School when a coupe which he said was occupied by three high school girls forced the four cyclists to the curb. The other three ran their bicycles over the curb, but Carl hit a parked machine and was thrown through a rear window. According to police, the driver of the machine did not stop.

The injured boy was taken to St. Mary's Hospital suffering from a gash in the neck and loss of blood. His condition was said to be serious.

CENSUS BUREAU REQUESTED TO SPEED PENSION CHECKING

Only Way Many Illinoisans Have of Proving Age, Congressman Kent Keller Says.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Representative Kent E. Keller, Ava (Ill.) Democrat, asked the Census Bureau yesterday to speed action on requests for proof of age from "hundreds of old people in Illinois who can not qualify for old age pensions until the bureau has acted."

Keller said the Census Bureau records were the only means "hundreds of Illinois old folks" have of establishing their right to pensions and that the bureau, due to lack of help, is "many weeks behind in answering such requests."

Illinois, the Representative said, did not keep vital statistics when most of today's old age pension applicants were born. As a result, he said, the Census Bureau records, together with family records, are the only means many of these persons have of legally establishing their age. Keller suggested the bureau be given an allocation from one of the relief funds to hire additional help in answering such requests."

Kingdom House activities are open to adults and children alike. Special programs have been designed for all ages, with 17 separate courses for boys and girls.

Law and Order Leagues Dies. CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Arthur B. Farwell, 84 years old, president of the Chicago Law and Order League since 1902 and a director of the Illinois Vigilance Association, died of a heart attack in suburban Highland Park today. Farwell, a resident of Glencoe, entered the hospital yesterday. He was associated with the Illinois Anti-Saloon League for many years.

Spanish Peasants Harvesting Crops
Despite War; Get Aid From Troops

Implements, Machines and Barns Taken From Rebels Are Given to Farmers by Loyalists.

From the Manchester Guardian.
BARBASTRO, Aragon, Aug. 27.—(By Courier)—This town, some 30 miles from Huesca, is the headquarters of Col. Villalba's loyalist column operating against Huesca from the north. The front has been pushed farther forward, the farthest point on this line being the outpost beyond Angues, only 15 miles from Huesca. Barbastro, therefore, has lost some of its earlier animation. The town is still, however, under war-time regulations. As everywhere on the front, no drink is allowed save wine. Cards through the streets, and militiamen are everywhere.

The drive from Lerida through Barbastro to the front gives one a good idea of the country over which the Aragonese campaign is being fought. The hot, dusty, yellow plains, the sudden ravines around which the road whirls in break-neck curves, the dead lands of yellow sandstone, with a few olive trees, and occasionally, in the valleys of dried rivers, the deep greens of fertile meadows and the brown of fields where they are already harvesting.

The Catalan loyalist columns have been insistent that the harvest should be got in. In some villages a new regime has been set up, giving implements, machines, and barns belonging to rebels and rebel sympathizers back to the peasants through the People's Committees, which now control the countryside. Durutti, leader of the Southern anarchist column, has declared that the harvest is sacred.

Many Literate Peasants.

One notices as soon as one enters Aragon the enthusiasm of the villagers. When a car is stopped at the barricade by eager guards armed with shotguns the whole village turns out to offer wine or water—water is more desirable than wine in these thirsty regions—to apologize that they cannot offer more, and to ask for tobacco and the Barcelona newspapers. It is surprising to find the high proportion of literate peasants in these parts. As one approaches the front the country appears more and more deserted. Yet there is no sign of the war. The Catalan columns have entirely refrained from laying waste the country.

The scattered posts warn one against going too far forward, but at first glance it seems that they are exaggerating. The front looks surprisingly thinly held, and one wonders where the 5000 men are who are holding this line.

As one travels down the line this calm is seen to be deceptive. Well-concealed groups of 15 to 25 men cover the countryside. There is no regular front line, however, and in some places the enemy's outposts interlock with those of the loyalists. One has to be extremely cautious where one goes, for no-man's-land outside Angues extends for some six miles at least.

In the midst of no-man's-land lies the village of Sietamo, covered by the rebel batteries of small howitzers on Mount Aragon, a disused monastery on a high, abrupt rock to the north. Both sides have been in Sietamo, but the village is untenable for both. As the Angues outposts told us, "There's nothing in Sietamo except the Fascists' shells."

In Another Village.

The peasants of the next village were, however, less dramatic. No one ever quite knows who holds what place from one day to the next. When your correspondent announced his intention of going to Sietamo the guards on the barricade, after offering wine, politely remarked that there was no reason why not. Had we not run into the last Catalan outpost, some four miles from the town, the shells would have had a companion in Sietamo.

Standing in the moonlight beside the bales of straw which make the last temporary barricade, he would watch the firing of a rebel machine gun from a parapet in a water tower two miles away. They fire every evening although there is little to hit. No one knows why they fire, but the Catalan outposts suppose it is to keep their spirits up. From Mount Aragon a shell falls on Sietamo every 10 minutes.

This outpost work is dangerous. The armed customs guard (cabinero) Joaquin Larrosa explained that the Fascist uniform was almost the same as the anti-Fascist, except that the Fascists wear more cartridge belts. This holds up the advance, as the anti-Fascists are confused by the similarity when they enter villages, hold back for fear of firing on their own men, and thus lose the effects of the first assault. I have heard the same complaint on other fronts. Often, too, rebel raiders dress in captured loyalists' uniforms.

Typical First-Line Base.
Angues itself is a typical first-line base. The dusty main street is full of cars, buses, mules and sleeping militiamen. Women come down to the pump with their Aragonese pitchers.

There is no money in the town, we were proudly informed when we asked for petrol, although our pass expressly stipulated that we should pay for it. Everything is obtained by vouchers issued by the village committee. The village exports its produce to a center like Barbastro and receives in exchange manufactured goods, cereals and petrol. The basis is not equivalent value but reasonable need. Of course, for any imported goods this means that the Supplies Committee in Barcelona will eventually have to foot the bill. The system appears to work excellently, and even

DIVORCES DR. EMOT A. RODDY ON CHARGE OF INDIGNITIES

Wife Allowed to Resume Maiden Name, Helen Ruder; $1000
Gross Alimony.

Mrs. Helen L. Roddy obtained a divorce from Dr. Emot A. Roddy, a physician with offices in the Fullerton Building, in Circuit Judge Eugene J. Sartorius' court yesterday. She was granted restoration of her maiden name of Ruder and $1000 gross alimony.

In her petition she had asked for $350 monthly alimony, stating that Dr. Roddy's income was $1000 a month. She charged general indignities, alleging that Dr. Roddy did not buy her sufficient clothes, would not talk to her for weeks at a time, and had told her he was tired of married life and wanted a divorce.

Dr. Roddy, who resides at 4555 Washington boulevard, made an entry of appearance but did not contest. The Roddys were married on Oct. 18, 1934, and separated last July.

SPANISH REBEL FLYERS SUPERIOR TO LEFTISTS

Madrid's "Foreign Legion of the Air" loses 10 Planes in Eight Days.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND (Uncensored Dispatch by Special Courier to Paris.)
(Copyright, 1936.)

MADRID, Sept. 17.—The Spanish insurgent has achieved superiority in the air for the time being and this superiority is exerting a telling effect in the crucial fighting on the Toledo front of Spain's civil war.

During the past eight days the "Foreign Legion of the Air," composed of British, French, German, Russian and Italian pilots and machine gunners fighting on Madrid's side, have lost 10 planes on the southwestern front alone.

They succeeded, however, in shooting down two insurgent planes, one of which was piloted by a 24-year-old Italian who saved his life by parachuting to earth.

Three of the Legion's members—two of them Britons, the other a German—candidly admitted that the superior air power is momentarily on the side of the insurgents.

They said the insurgent planes are faster and more powerful and that Gen. Franco's bombing ships are larger than those of the Government. They refused, however, to admit that the insurgent air corps personnel consists of better flyers, fighters and bombers.

The aviators, fighting for Madrid insist that Franco's air force is composed mostly of Italian and German airmen.

Capt. Victor Haefner and Bruno Von Salomon, both well known German flyers, lead the German contingent of Madrid's Foreign Legion of the air. The German contingent also includes Claus Becker, August Hoffman, Andreas Neumann and Herr Pepper. The Legion also includes a number of German mechanics.

John Wilson, young Briton and Oxford graduate who was wounded three times in the thigh by machine gun bullets when bombing plane in which he was the machine gunner was riddled by fire from an insurgent pursuit plane, is hobbling around again after weeks in a hospital.

He says he will be fully recovered in a few days and will probably go back into action.

Among others in the Red Air Legion mentioned as being British are William Bamforth, Donald Hutchinson, Robert Grand and Richard and Marshall Raymond.

More than 50 per cent of the Legionnaires are French, headed by Capt. Goninet and Lieut. Albert Garraz. There are at least 10 Italians in Madrid's foreign air corps.

The Government is now concentrating all its foreign flyers in the Hotel Florida. They are under orders not to talk to anyone except their comrades and officers.

Some of the foreign flyers have been given Spanish passports and have assumed different names. One of the flyers while speaking with the correspondent said: "Wait a minute, I've forgotten my name. I must look at my passport."

One of the best of the German pilots complained bitterly about the disorganization of the Government's air force and its lack of coordination. When operating over the battle fronts, the German airmen told me, the planes get no cooperation from the red militia artillery and infantry.

The flyers explained: "These Spaniards are as sensitive and touchy to criticism as children. You can't tell them anything. They know it all."

Casualties have been relatively heavy during the last 10 days among the foreign flyers employed by the Government. One of the aviators told me he blamed the Madrid Government's inferior planes for the casualties.

The insurgents seem to have high-speed, high-powered machines of the latest and best designs, while the Red Air Legionnaires assert they have to fly some ships that are slow and antiquated.

END COTTON PEONAGE, NORMAN THOMAS SAYS

PUBLIC TO BE TOLD OF HOTEL COMFORTS

Socialist Assails Administration for Failure to Aid Sharecroppers.

By the Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 18.—Norman Thomas, Socialist presidential candidate, in a speech here yesterday, assailed the Roosevelt administration and Gov. J. M. Furtrell of Arkansas for failure to stop the systematic exploitation of sharecroppers, which he charged involved "night riding, kidnapping and even murder."

Thomas asserted the name of Frank Weems, 40-year-old Negro, mysteriously missing since June, "has become a symbol for our shame," and asked Gov. Furtrell to produce him or "explain why he cannot keep his promise" to do so.

The question, "Where is Frank Weems?" he said, "concerns the honor, not merely of community and local officials" but of Gov. Furtrell, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas and "his great friend who campaigned for him, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President of the United States."

Speaking at a meeting of Socialists, Thomas outlined a seven-point program for sharecroppers. He said it should include an end of peonage, a guarantee to agricultural workers of the right to organize, and the prohibition of all attempts to disfranchise workers.

He would provide increased funds for the education of white and Negro farm laborers, Federal aid to co-operatives such as the Sherman Eddy project at Hillhouse, Miss.; a greater share for workers of all bounties extended cotton farmers and a long-range program for diversified agriculture which could provide for the transfer to industry of agricultural workers "whose machinery will make superfluous."

Thomas said Weems had not been heard from since he led a meeting of workers demanding 75 cents a day for chopping cotton. He charged Sheriff Howard Curnin of Crittenden County contented himself by saying that Weems was not dead, that the Sheriff's statement was in effect, endorsed by Gov. Furtrell and morally, at least, by Senator Robinson. About that time, he said, President Roosevelt "denounced the economic royalists, among whom apparently the planters' job, though none of them are owners or managers of 20,000 or 30,000 acre plantations, do not, in his opinion, belong."

Casualties have been relatively heavy during the last 10 days among the foreign flyers employed by the Government. One of the aviators told me he blamed the Madrid Government's inferior planes for the casualties.

SUES HUSBAND'S PARENTS, BROTHER, FOR ALIENATION

Mrs. Clyde Williamson asks for $50,000 damages in action against Clayton.

Suit seeking $50,000 damages from Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williamson, 3039 Waterman avenue, and their son, Ogden, was filed in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday by Mrs. Clyde Williamson, wife of another son, who alleged they alienated the affections of her husband.

The petition alleged the three defendants prejudiced Clyde Williams against his wife, induced him to spend a considerable part of his time with them away from her, caused him to conceal his earnings from her and forced her to file suit against him for separate maintenance. The petition said he was living with his parents.

J. H. Williamson said the allegations in the petition were ridiculous. The Willamsons are in the contracting business.

Wedding Anniversary Reception.
Mr. and Mrs. William Welkener, 4322 Dewey avenue, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary tomorrow night with a reception at the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue. Their six children, eight grandchildren and one great-granddaughter will attend. Mr. Welkener is 73 years old, and his wife is 72 years old.

ROOSEVELT ASKS
U.S. TO STAND FOR FREEDOM OF MINDHas Been Exiled From Many Lands, He Says in Address on Harvard's
300th Anniversary.CALLS FOR VISION AND TOLERANCEUrge Understanding of Philosophies We Do Not Accept, of Hopes We Find Difficult to Share.By the Associated Press.
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 18.—President Roosevelt declared today that "in this day of modern witch-burning, when freedom of thought has been exiled from many lands," it is up to Harvard University and America "to stand for the freedom of the human mind."

Speaking at the Harvard Tercentenary celebration in Sanders Theatre in Memorial Hall, when rain prevented holding ceremonies outdoors, Mr. Roosevelt asked his fellow alumni gathered to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the university, "to dedicate themselves to citizenship in the 'high Athenian sense.'" He called on them "to pay silent reverence to the past, but to recognize no less the direction of the future; to understand philosophies we do not accept and hopes we find it difficult to share; to account the service of mankind the highest ambition a man can follow, and to know that there is no calling so humble that it cannot be instant with that ambition; never to be indifferent to what may affect our neighbors; always, as Coleridge said, to put truth in the first place and not in the second."

Text of the Address.
The text of the address follows: "I am here today in a joint and several capacity. First, as the President of the United States; second, as chairman of the United States Harvard Tercentenary Commission, which is composed of five members of the Senate, five members of the House of Representatives, a representative of the United States Army, and one of the navy, and two representatives of the universities of the United States; the distinguished presidents of the University of California and North Carolina. Finally, I am here as a son of Harvard, who gladly returns to this spot where men have sought truth for 300 years."

The roots of Harvard are deep in the past. It is pleasant to remember today that this meeting is being held in pursuance of an adjournment expressly taken 100 years ago on motion of Josiah Quincy.

In Andrew Jackson's Day.
At that time many of the alumni of Harvard were sorely troubled concerning the state of the nation. Andrew Jackson was President. One of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Harvard College, alumni again were sorely troubled. Grover Cleveland was President. Now, on the three hundredth anniversary, I am President."

In the words of Euripides:

"There be many shapes of mystery:

"And many things God makes to be."

"Past hope or fear.

"And the end men looked for cometh not."

"And a path is there where no man sought."

"So hath it fallen here."

"In spite of fear, Harvard and the nation of which it is a part have marched steadily to new and successful achievements, changing their formations and their strategy to meet new conditions; but marching always under the old banner of freedom."

"In the olden days of New England, it was Increase Mather who told the students of Harvard that they were 'pledged to the word of no particular master,' that they should 'above all find a friend in truth.'

The Creed of Harvard.

"That became the creed of Harvard. Behind the tumult and the shouting it is still the creed of Harvard."

"In this day of modern witch-burners, when freedom of thought has been exiled from any lands which were once its home, it is the part of Harvard and America to stand for the freedom of the human mind and to carry the torch of truth."

"The truth is great and will prevail. For centuries that grand old saying has been a rock of support for persecuted men."

"But it depends on men's tolerance, self-restraint, and devotion to freedom, not only for themselves but also for others, whether the truth will prevail through free research, free discussion, and the free intercourse of civilized men. It will prevail only after suppression."

Campaign Sidelights

Roosevelt Seems to Be Behaving as if There Were No Campaign, Probably Result of Deliberate DecisionBy Paul Y. Anderson.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—HUS far President Roosevelt has been conducting his campaign over his shoulder, and it shows from the ground for the first time if he continues to seek re-election by seeming to forget that he is a candidate. More than one man, suddenly finding himself confronted with a subpoena, an angry woman, or the fact that he had a hole in his sock, has decided he could best meet the situation by ignoring it.

The method is not new in politics. Coolidge devoted most of the 1924 campaign to getting a good rest. Of course, it came natural for him. It was once said that Coolidge had developed the perfect technique for dealing with national crises; whenever one arose, he simply pulled down the shades and took a nap.

But such methods do not come naturally for the present occupant of the White House. In any situation that seriously concerns him, his impulse is to do something—to do anything, his critics would say. Therefore, if he elects to go through this campaign appearing to ignore the fact that one is in progress, you may be sure his calculation is the outcome of mature calculation. It will be entirely and exclusively because he considers it the strategy best designed to produce the desired result.

One of the Different Ways to Choke a Cat.

THERE are more ways of killing a cat than by choking it to death with hot fudge. This maxim, believed to have been enunciated originally by the philosopher Sing Low, is quite as true today as it was in the year 1194 B. C. Who is there to criticize a President who drops all thoughts of politics and speeds to the rescue of the drought-stricken farmers in the West and who will find fault if it appears that threatening events in Europe make it his sacred duty to stick by his desk in Washington, instead of gallivanting around the country on campaign tours, as others, less responsible for the national safety, may be doing?

It might be pointed out, to be sure, that the spring picture of a President animated always and solely by a consuming concern of the public weal is ideally calculated to make votes for him, but such thoughts can only be put down as the offspring of unworthy minds and jaundiced hearts, ever willing to deny virtue its just reward. So, when I hear Mr. Roosevelt telling the Conference on the Mobilization for Human Needs, as he did yesterday, that returning prosperity is making it easier for private charity to assume the burdens of relief, I do not jump to the hasty conclusion that he is taking credit for improved conditions. I accept it for granted that he is only taking the lead in a non-political drive for a noble cause.

If Gov. Landon Wins,
It Won't Be By Cleverness.

F Landon wins the election no body will be able to say that he was put across by clever political management—not if the truth is to be respected. Observing the gyrations of Chairman Hamilton and Col. Knox, one is reminded of the sour witticism perpetrated by Senator Moses when Dr. Hubert Work was originally designated to manage Hoover's campaign for the Republican nomination. "At last," said Moses, "they have found a man who can stop Hoover."

Before Knox touched off his backfiring blast about no insurance policy or savings account being safe and thus brought upon his hapless head the shuddering, speechless wrath of the very business elements most favorably disposed toward the Republican ticket, Gov. Landon is reported to have divined that something was seriously awry in the control room. He is quoted as saying privately, with considerable BERLIN, Sept. 18.—More than 500,000 Germans have been freed by Reichsfuehrer Hitler's birthday amnesty last April, an official communiqué said today.

The communiqué said, were prisoners convicted and sentenced to minor punishments, those whose penalties involved only fines or jail sentences of a month or less. There were 495,014 such violators released.

Other Germans who had run afoul of the Nazi laws for committing misdemeanors "in excessive zeal for the National Socialist cause" were liberated from jail or pending indictments against them were quashed. There were 3532 offenders in this category.

Another 2777, whose offenses were grouped under the headings, "perfidious acts against the state," "insulting party leaders" and "abuse of the pulpit," were discharged from custody.

ISSUE OF CAMPAIGNTells Young Republican Leaders at Topeka Youth Has Good Future Under American System.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 18.—Gov. Alf M. Landon assailed "those who are trying to make youth believe that they have no future under the American system," and told a conference of National Young Republican leaders here today that the Republican party utterly rejects this philosophy.

The Republican presidential nominee, according to the present administration, believes there is no future for this country," declared "America is still on the up-grade, that we can eliminate unemployment, that the Government should tighten the rules governing business, but should not attempt to manage business; that, in a word, America will once again be a nation where youth can be confident of its future."

The presence of the conference—young persons of other parties also were invited—was interpreted by Landon as "proof that the American youth of this land is not willing to surrender liberty for a phantom security."

Text of His Address.

Following is the text of the Governor's address:

"Mr. Bradley, ladies and gentlemen: It is gratifying to me to get your most encouraging message. You represent young men and women throughout the nation, young men and women many of whom have the responsibility this year of casting their first vote. This nation has always taken pride in its young voters. It has taken pride in the fact that our first voters always look forward to an active participation in our national elections.

"There has been a real reason for this pride. Our first voters are not content with the past. They have their eyes on the future. They have the courage and the ambition to go forward. They are determined to build a better America. They, more than any other group in our nation, assure progress.

"History and experience teach that America is made over in every generation. It is made over, not by wishful thinking; it is made over, not from blue prints in Washington; it is made over by the high hopes and the honest toil of the American people.

"A Phantom Security."

"Your presence here today is proof that you are following in the footsteps of the generations of youth that have built America. It is proof that young America is not asleep. It is proof that the youth of this land is not willing to surrender liberty for a phantom security. I welcome you to the comradeship of a great cause."

"This is no ordinary campaign in which we are engaged. It is not a campaign based on the usual partisan issues. It is a campaign that cuts across all party lines. Today the issue is the kind of government, and the kind of country, we are to have in the years to come.

"In the past, for the most part, our campaigns have dealt chiefly with how the government should exercise the powers it has. This also is an issue in this campaign, and a very important one. But now, in addition, we are faced by a far greater issue. This is, what powers the government shall have and what powers it shall not have.

Question of Government Powers.

"The question raised by this issue—what powers the government shall have and what powers it shall not have—can be the difference between representative government and organized authority wielded by one man.

"Once that is clearly understood by the voters of this country, I have no doubt as to the results. I know that in the minds of some

GOV. LANDON THANKS REED AND ELY FOR AID IN MAINE

Writes Them Saying Their Personal Participation Was Important.

By the Associated Press.
TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 18.—Gov. Alf M. Landon wrote yesterday to former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and former Gov. Joseph E. Ely of Massachusetts, both anti-New Deal Democrats, expressing appreciation of their activity in Maine, which preceded a Republican victory in that State.

The letter to Reed follows:

"Millions of American citizens are grateful for the help you gave in the Maine campaign preceding this week's elections, and I wish to join with them in expressing appreciation.

"Not only were your speeches helpful, but more important perhaps was the personal participation of a man of your national reputation.

"To me, the entire campaign and the results in Maine are evidence of the character of the national campaign this year. If we are to enjoy once more, just, and efficient representative government, the American people as a whole must place the country's welfare above partisan interests. The people of Maine, apparently, understanding the importance of the referendum, have done so."

G. O. P. COMMITTEE CRITICISES KILLING OF PIGS BY AAA

Says It Has Affidavits From Men Who Wanted to Give Stock to Relief.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The Republican National Committee condemned last night what was termed the "wasteful slaughter of food supplies" by the AAA.

The committee said it had affidavits and photographs to show that livestock were killed by New Deal agents although "in some instances offers were made by AAA agents to buy the calves and pigs from the growers at the price the Government had agreed to pay" and to turn them over to relief organizations.

The committee said the affidavits were from Dr. B. G. Williams of Oskaloosa, Ia., and John H. Sauke, a farmer near Farmhamville, Ia.

Sauke, the committee contended, was forced under the terms of his AAA contract in February, 1935, to kill 45 pigs in violation of a state law forbidding any person or corporation to "willfully destroy or negligently suffer to go to waste with intent to increase the price" of any food product.

The Japanese announcement stated Japanese forces took up combat positions, but an actual clash apparently was avoided.

Chinese barracks at Fengtai were surrounded by the Japanese troops, who were being reinforced by soldiers from the Peiping Embassy.

LEAGUE ASSEMBLY

Italy's Collaboration
Without Recognizing African Conquest.By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Sept. 18.—European Powers have found a formula to bar vanquished Ethiopia from Monday's League of Nations assembly meeting and to obtain renewed collaboration of Premier Mussolini of Italy, League officials disclosed today.

The officials said they expected Halle Selassie's delegation of three, due in Geneva Sunday, to be refused seats at the Assembly table on the ground they do not represent an effective government.

They added, however, that the League is not prepared to recognize the Italian conquest of Ethiopia which it tried to stop or to declare an independent Ethiopia nonexistent or even out of the League.

The officials expected Italian delegates would remain absent until Premier Mussolini is satisfied that minor Powers will raise no objection when the Italians present their credentials on behalf of the King and Emperor.

In turn, the League may accept the credentials without mentioning "Emperor," which might imply recognition of the Italian-African empire created by annexation of Ethiopia.

Criticism of an Editorial.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial of Sept. 14 entitled "The Campaign Really Begins" is disappointing to one who ordinarily finds your editorial page most stimulating.

You appear to have three criticisms of the President. First, the NRA, now injected into the campaign by Gov. Landon, was a bad experiment both legally and economically. With this, there is fairly general agreement.

Second, you say, "The President (has) shown a stubborn adherence to the philosophy of the NRA and, therefore, a desire to change the whole course of the American system." This claim, in my opinion, may be seriously questioned. The President protested against the NRA decision—in the summer of 1935. He has not since proposed any substitute legislation. And, most significant, in the recent article by Secretary Ickes in the Saturday Evening Post, there was not a word about the NRA. Evidently the administration is happy to forget it.

Third, you imply, the President must be criticised for his animosity toward the Supreme Court. Looking back at the record of the two parties' immortals—Jefferson and Lincoln—it seems hard to allow such an argument much weight. Jefferson damned judicial supremacy as an illegal usurpation of power, and advocated a new Constitution every generation. Lincoln refused to be bound by a decision which ran counter to the nation's will. Yet Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a world removed nearly another hundred years from the Founding Fathers, is to be condemned for desiring a liberal interpretation of our fundamental law!

Even the most ardent friends of judicial supremacy gaze with dismay upon some of the majority decisions of the present Supreme Court. Justice Harlan Stone, dissenting in the AAA case, expressed thus his respect for the majority decision:

Congress and courts both unhealthily may falter or be mistaken in the performance of their constitutional duty, but interpretation of our great charter of government which proceeds on any assumption that the responsibility for the preservation of our institutions is the exclusive concern of any one of the three branches of government, or that it alone can save them from destruction, is far more likely, in the long run, "to obliterate the constituent members" of "an indestructible union of indestructible states" than the frank recognition that language, even of a Constitution, may mean what it says...

You will remember, too, that even Chief Justice Hughes protested gravely in the Guffey case against the court's outright violation of the intention of Congress in ruling unconstitutional every part of a law expressly drawn to be interpreted under the usual separability clause.

The reason for dissatisfaction with the court's record of the past three years is the public's suspicion that its majority are doing—consciously or unconsciously, who can say?—that which the late great Oliver Wendell Holmes so often accused them of doing: reading into decisions their own notions of what should be done, rather than what the Constitution, reasonably interpreted, might allow. It is this suspicion which demands consideration of amendments to limit the court's powers.

Lippmann and the Price Index.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Mr. LIPPMANNS chameleon-like change of his political complexion, resulting in his alliance with the Landon-Hearst group, will remain a puzzle to his former admirers, unless some psychoanalyst undertakes to analyze Mr. Lippmann's subconscious motives that have become dominant over his rational self.

There appears to be a strange and inverse correlation between Mr. Lippmann's liberalism and the price index of securities and commodities. When the price index went down to the lowest mark, in 1932 and 1933, Mr. Lippmann's liberalism rose to the zenith, but now, when the price index is up again, and prosperity appears to be just around the corner, Mr. Lippmann's liberalism has hit the nadir.

It is rather a sad commentary upon our culture that it has produced so very few enlightened leaders that will remain loyal to progressive principles and will work without fear or favor, for social and economic reforms. They must search for leadership within their own ranks.

A COMMITTEE OF THE PEOPLE.

In the news columns today, the Post-Dispatch makes the startling disclosure that there is no remedy in Missouri law to relieve taxpayers of the burden of bonds fraudulently voted. There is no way in which a bond issue election can be contested. There is no way by which taxpayers can successfully appeal to a court of equity, even though fraud is definitely proved.

It is the assumption of the law—and, in view of recent exposures of wholesale election frauds in St. Louis, an incredibly absurd one—that the rights of citizens and taxpayers are adequately protected by the judges who supervise the voting and count the ballots. The same officials—mirabile dictu!—whose co-operation is necessary if elections are to be stolen are the ones the public must depend upon for protection.

Here is a classic illustration of "the infirmities of procedure," the phrase used by the United States Supreme Court in censuring Congress for canceling the gold clause in Government obligations. The phrase was meant to describe faults in the law by which litigants are deprived of the proper recourse to justice.

Here is a loophole by which the taxpayers could be systematically plundered. The plunderbund could steal one bond issue election after another and get away with the loot untrammeled by the courts. To be sure, persons found guilty of fraud could be punished, but the bonds themselves would stand as a charge against the taxpayers.

In test cases brought to the Supreme Court of Missouri, involving facts similar to those surrounding the riverfront bond-issue election, the court has repeatedly refused to interfere on the ground that it lacks jurisdiction.

If there is no remedy at law, is there a remedy in fact? We believe there is. If a grand jury, after exercising its right to examine the contents of ballot boxes, should announce in its report to the court that an honest count would have defeated a bond issue—that the election was stolen—the question of whether or not the bonds would then be sold would lie upon "the conscience of the sovereign," to use another phrase of the United States Supreme Court. The "sovereign" in this case would be the head of the State or of the city and all other official persons clothed with authority to have anything to do with the issuance or sale of public securities.

But, it may be argued, the sovereign may have no conscience. In that case, the mighty force of public opinion would operate to stop the sale of bonds and expenditure of the proceeds. No Mayor, no Comptroller, no Governor, could dare to rouse the indignation of the public by spending bonds that were denounced by the grand jury as fraudulently voted.

The grand jury thus has an immensely important role. It is the people's protection against fraud. By its right to examine the contents of ballot boxes and by the use of its other great and sweeping powers, it can discover whether a bond issue election was stolen or not, and if it finds it was stolen, it can pronounce the word of doom.

MAINE UNDER FIRE.

Out here in the Middle West, the affairs of Maine do not much perturb us. The State's acts of commission or omission are ordinarily viewed with "exceeding calm." Its September election, adhered to as a barometer, through sheer stubbornness, may cause a flurry of chatter, but even on those quadrennial occasions we are not gravely concerned with what happens or doesn't happen. We interpret the event, each to his particular fancy, perfunctorily wish Maine well and let it go at that.

But something has just occurred in Maine that may not be lightly dismissed. Dark suspicion, we learn, is agitating the stoic soul of Postmaster-General-on-Vacation Farley. That senatorial contest in which Gov. Brann was beaten by almost a sub-marginal majority! Were devious practices resorted to in calculating the apparent triumph of Senator White? That is the question. A reflection on the probity of Maine is something too solemn to be dismissed with, say, the dignity of silence or the cavalier pooh-pooh.

Another aspect of that fatal day clamors for attention. There were 15,000 more votes cast on Monday than in the presidential election of four years ago and 30,000 more than in the gubernatorial and senatorial contest of 1934.

How come? What do the vital statistics show? Has the Pine Tree been flourishing, biologically, like the Green Bay? Or has Maine, taking a leaf from Missouri, been resurrecting the dead and raiding the spirit world for phantoms that vote as realistically as citizens still in the fleshly coils, and with superior skill?

Has Maine, in a word, gone crooked? Incredible, of course. But should investigation verify the surmise, the sun would be darkened, the moon a scarlet orb and the stars would dance no more.

Germans have created substitutes for marble and rubber, but none for Adolf.

PROPHETIC OF THE PYRAMID.

The Great Pyramid, one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, has had the attention not only of engineers through the centuries, but of seers as well. A school of prophets known as pyramidologists has come into being, professing to read mankind's past and future history in the labyrinths within the massive pile. Taking an inch to represent a year, they find crucial dates at the ends or turnings of passageways. The pyramid, built more than 5000 years ago, thus is seen to record such events as the Exodus, the Crucifixion, the outbreak and end of the World War, etc. Henry James Forman, in his new book, "The Story of Prophecy," devotes much space to this enticing theory.

The pyramid's main passage emerges into the King's chamber at a point fixed by these students as Sept. 15-16, 1936, therefrom a highly significant date in history. To the pyramidologists, it signifies "the return of judgment, the cleansing of the nations, the return of the true light from the West," etc.

Sept. 15-16 has come and gone, with a variety of events, but none so far reported of earth-shaking significance. The news was of war in Spain, strikes in France, elections in Michigan and New Hampshire, shipwreck and avalanche, baseball games and golf matches, election frauds and cooler weather. Has some cosmic occurrence escaped the reporters? Or has a movement begun on an imperceptible scale that will in time enter the history books? Can it be that the pyramid's builders or its measurers made a miscalculation?

A parable to this effect serves to tell the story of Palestine, and the conflicting claims of Arabs and Jews, each put forward under the pledges of England, the mandate Power. New light upon the British promise to the Arabs was shed in an article in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch by Albin E. Johnson, who gave for the first time the text of letters in which London officials, during the World War, definitely agreed to the setting up of an Arab state in territory including Palestine. The Zionist claims are based upon other promises, in which the Jewish dream of a "national home" in Palestine is recognized.

Complete returns on the date, a century or so hence, will show. But meanwhile, we may look forward to another momentous date, Aug. 20, 1935, also endowed with significance by pyramid lore.

It's a bad year for castles in Spain.

PALESTINE PARABLE.

A wealthy man said to his elder son: "You are dutiful and deserving, so I shall give you my rich estate on the River Jordan." Soon after, he said to his younger son: "I wish to reward your devotion, so my rich estate on the River Jordan shall be yours." Each son was gratified, until he journeyed to the estate and found the other taking possession and claiming rights of priority. Then they fell upon each other and a furious fight ensued. Each suffered grave injuries, despite the father's efforts to make peace.

A parable to this effect serves to tell the story of Palestine, and the conflicting claims of Arabs and Jews, each put forward under the pledges of England, the mandate Power. New light upon the British promise to the Arabs was shed in an article in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch by Albin E. Johnson, who gave for the first time the text of letters in which London officials, during the World War, definitely agreed to the setting up of an Arab state in territory including Palestine. Lebanon, Ill. C. J. B.

The British are now using every effort to end the bloodyshed in Palestine, but it is a task that tries their best military and diplomatic resources. Another parable comes to mind: that of the man who fell into a pit of his own digging.

HARVARD'S 300 YEARS.

Harvard's brilliant tercentenary celebration approaches its climax. After several weeks of conferences, which drew many of the most renowned scholars in the world—among them 14 winners of the Nobel Prize—to the elm-shaded Yard, the tercentenary program proper is under way, with the conferring of 60-odd honorary degrees set for today. By tonight, Harvard will have entered its fourth century.

It is a thought to give pause to every American, whether or not he be an alumnus of this oldest of our educational institutions. Harvard, or rather the tiny school which preceded it, was founded at "Newtowne" in 1636. Since then, a wilderness has been explored, peopled and transformed into the leading nation of the world. Wars have been fought and the face of the globe redrawn many times. Great social and economic changes have come, and when they have been outmoded, still other changes have taken place. Leaders have risen to fame and passed from the scene. Causes innumerable have waxed, waned and died. Through this three-century span, Harvard has lifted the lamp of learning ever higher and fed it more and more oil that the rays might reach out in a constantly widening circle.

Merely to catalogue by topics Harvard's contributions to American life and the knowledge of the world would require a large volume. Thinkers like Emerson, James, Royce, Santayana, Munsterberg and Palmer have written its name in letters of gold. Lowell and Longfellow head a great host of distinguished teachers of literature and the fine arts. In the physical and social sciences—in chemistry, physics, astronomy, medicine, botany, in economics, government, history, law, sociology—eager investigators have worked side by side, pushing before them the frontiers of human understanding. The history of Harvard is the story of modern progress.

Unswayed by passing moods, Harvard has stood through the centuries for freedom of the teacher to inquire and expound the truth as he has found it. Elsewhere, there might be repression and intimidation; under an Eliot, a Lowell, a Conant, the teacher was to be true to his mission. Let Harvard always cherish this great principle. If the American people hold fast to freedom of thought and speech, the future holds no problems which they cannot solve.

IN FAIRNESS TO HELEN.

Maj. Stark, at the homecoming of Helen Stephens at Fulton, Mo., put her in the list of famous Missourians alongside Mark Twain, Eugene Field, Champ Clark and John J. Pershing. Of all things! Why, not a single one of those luminaries could run a hundred meters in anything like 11.4.

MAINE UNDER FIRE.

Out here in the Middle West, the affairs of Maine do not much perturb us. The State's acts of commission or omission are not ordinarily viewed with "exceeding calm." Its September election, adhered to as a barometer, through sheer stubbornness, may cause a flurry of chatter, but even on those quadrennial occasions we are not gravely concerned with what happens or doesn't happen. We interpret the event, each to his particular fancy, perfunctorily wish Maine well and let it go at that.

But something has just occurred in Maine that may not be lightly dismissed. Dark suspicion, we learn, is agitating the stoic soul of Postmaster-General-on-Vacation Farley. That senatorial contest in which Gov. Brann was beaten by almost a sub-marginal majority! Were devious practices resorted to in calculating the apparent triumph of Senator White? That is the question. A reflection on the probity of Maine is something too solemn to be dismissed with, say, the dignity of silence or the cavalier pooh-pooh.

Another aspect of that fatal day clamors for attention. There were 15,000 more votes cast on Monday than in the presidential election of four years ago and 30,000 more than in the gubernatorial and senatorial contest of 1934.

How come? What do the vital statistics show? Has the Pine Tree been flourishing, biologically, like the Green Bay? Or has Maine, taking a leaf from Missouri, been resurrecting the dead and raiding the spirit world for phantoms that vote as realistically as citizens still in the fleshly coils, and with superior skill?

Has Maine, in a word, gone crooked? Incredible, of course. But should investigation verify the surmise, the sun would be darkened, the moon a scarlet orb and the stars would dance no more.

Germans have created substitutes for marble and rubber, but none for Adolf.

PROPHETIC OF THE PYRAMID.

The Great Pyramid, one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, has had the attention not only of engineers through the centuries, but of seers as well. A school of prophets known as pyramidologists has come into being, professing to read mankind's past and future history in the labyrinths within the massive pile. Taking an inch to represent a year, they find crucial dates at the ends or turnings of passageways. The pyramid, built more than 5000 years ago, thus is seen to record such events as the Exodus, the Crucifixion, the outbreak and end of the World War, etc. Henry James Forman, in his new book, "The Story of Prophecy," devotes much space to this enticing theory.

The pyramid's main passage emerges into the King's chamber at a point fixed by these students as Sept. 15-16, 1936, therefrom a highly significant date in history. To the pyramidologists, it signifies "the return of judgment, the cleansing of the nations, the return of the true light from the West," etc.

Sept. 15-16 has come and gone, with a variety of events, but none so far reported of earth-shaking significance. The news was of war in Spain, strikes in France, elections in Michigan and New Hampshire, shipwreck and avalanche, baseball games and golf matches, election frauds and cooler weather. Has some cosmic occurrence escaped the reporters? Or has a movement begun on an imperceptible scale that will in time enter the history books? Can it be that the pyramid's builders or its measurers made a miscalculation?

A parable to this effect serves to tell the story of Palestine, and the conflicting claims of Arabs and Jews, each put forward under the pledges of England, the mandate Power. New light upon the British promise to the Arabs was shed in an article in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch by Albin E. Johnson, who gave for the first time the text of letters in which London officials, during the World War, definitely agreed to the setting up of an Arab state in territory including Palestine. The Zionist claims are based upon other promises, in which the Jewish dream of a "national home" in Palestine is recognized.

It is rather a sad commentary upon our culture that it has produced so very few enlightened leaders that will remain loyal to progressive principles and will work without fear or favor, for social and economic reforms. They must search for leadership within their own ranks.

Lebanon, Ill. C. J. B.

The British are now using every effort to end the bloodyshed in Palestine, but it is a task that tries their best military and diplomatic resources. Another parable comes to mind: that of the man who fell into a pit of his own digging.

HARVARD'S 300 YEARS.

Harvard's brilliant tercentenary celebration approaches its climax. After several weeks of conferences, which drew many of the most renowned scholars in the world—among them 14 winners of the Nobel Prize—to the elm-shaded Yard, the tercentenary program proper is under way, with the conferring of 60-odd honorary degrees set for today. By tonight, Harvard will have entered its fourth century.

It is a thought to give pause to every American, whether or not he be an alumnus of this oldest of our educational institutions. Harvard, or rather the tiny school which preceded it, was founded at "Newtowne" in 1636. Since then, a wilderness has been explored, peopled and transformed into the leading nation of the world. ## TODAY and TOMORROW

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Harvard's Birthday

THOSE who have been following the celebration in Cambridge may have noted that singularly great time has been devoted to the glorification of Harvard. The exercises have consisted in gathering together leading men in all fields of learning from all parts of the earth, in listening to what they have to say, examining with them in small groups and in private consultation the great questions before the human mind, and then of honoring these representative scholars in the public ceremony.

Thus, the theme of the celebration has not been the greatness of Harvard's long history, but the advance of human knowledge. Degrees are to be conferred only upon scholars now actively engaged in advancing knowledge. The funds which are being raised will be devoted wholly to learning; to establishing professorships and national scholarships for students.

The character of these ceremonies reflects something more than the reticence of New England and its noble distaste for making a public show of its qualities. It reflects also the knowledge which only the wise are able to believe, that things endure in human affairs when they are made not of pride and power, but of humanity and the love of truth.

Nothing could have been more becoming than that Harvard, which is today one of the great universities of the world, should celebrate its 300th birthday not by a display of its own learning, but by drawing upon the learning of others. For the past month, the Harvard professors have gone to school to the scholars who are their guests, and by that they have acknowledged the great tradition that the good teacher is always a student.

That is the principle which causes human institutions to last. The men who founded Harvard College in 1636 were of an age when many of them might have seen Shakespeare in the flesh. When Harvard was 100 years old, there was as yet no American nation. At the 200th anniversary, the solidarity of the American Union had still to be put to its crucial test. Yet through 300 great and troubled years, Harvard has endured; it has lived past wars and revolutions; it is older than the Government under which it exists. Like a great river which is forever moving, the stream of its life is uninterrupted.

It has lived on, not because it had great wealth, for Harvard has been again and again most desperately poor. It has had, of course, no army, no material force of any kind to make it preeminent. It has not been the ward of a great empire or of a munificent state. Yet Harvard has outlasted all the governments which existed when it was founded, and the social orders through which mankind has moved in 300 years. It has had only the tradition of learning which its founders carried into the New World from the more ancient universities of Europe and the support of a community in New England, which has been loyal to voice. They stopped en route for a visit at Valley Ranch, Santa Fe, N. M.

Miss Taussig will be a debutante this winter.

For those who ponder this history, it cannot fail to be manifest how transient must be the claims of Governments to use the universities as their instruments, how uncouth the pretensions of those who would make them subservient to a party or a class.

The universities, like the churches and all other fellowships devoted to the highest concerns of mankind, are the repositories of the abiding purposes and interests of men. They have a more ancient title than any government to define the human destiny; they draw upon the deepest allegiances of civilized men, and the conscience which they inform will in the end judge—it will not be judged by—the policies of states.

In the final recording, the question will not be whether the universities have served the contemporary purposes of states and of the partisans within them. It will be whether states have been loyal to that great tradition of order actuated by the love of truth, of which the universities are the appointed guardians.

Succumbs As Result of Fall; Her Twin Sister Is Dowager Lady Loch.

By the Associated Press.

KNEBWORTH, England, Sept. 18.—Edith, Dowager Countess of Lytton, who was attached to the court of Queen Victoria and Queen Alexandra, died today from the effects of a recent fall.

She and her twin sister, the Dowager Lady Loch, celebrated their ninety-fifth birthdays Sept. 15. They were often called England's most famous twins. The Countess was the widow of the First Earl of Lytton, who died in 1891.

The state and local bodies are plainly not going to have their strength, meager as it is, divided further and disrupted by a prolonged internecine war. Rule or ruin may be an attractive policy to the reactions of the Executive Council, but it has little appeal for those who must suffer its consequences on the firing line. They want unity, not division.

According to the federation's own constitution, the Executive Council has no power to suspend a union or revoke a charter except when ordered by a two-thirds vote of national convention. Obviously, the council exceeded its powers in suspending the unions. It had no such mandate from convention.

It is altogether probable, of course, that legal fight to establish the right of the suspended unions to vote at Tampa would be settled by the time of the convention.

It would lay the basic declaration of any acts of the convention invalid if the unions are illegal, denied their votes that would make it impossible for Executive Council to muster the necessary two-thirds vote for expulsion.

The leaders of the CIO should avoid being in a position of which it might be that they did not do their utmost to win a split. At a time when the Executive Council has no concern except its own interest, theirs is the responsibility to preserve the unity of labor.

CARDINAL HAYES DEPLORES DECLINE OF PATRIOTISM

WE MAY HAVE TO BATTLE HERE IN AMERICA FOR FLAG OVER OUR HEADS.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Cardinal Hayes, welcoming more than 5000 delegates to the third annual national convention of the Holy Name Society, in St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday, deplored what he called the decline of patriotism.

"The word 'patriotism' seems to be an obsolete word just now in our own country," Cardinal Hayes said. "Rarely do we see it. Rarely do we hear it. We are informed that even in our schools and our colleges and our universities, instead of patriotism, we hear Communism.

"Today we are a world in battle, a battle against atheism in Russia, sacrifice in Spain, a Catholic country, and apostasy in Mexico, another Catholic country. It is a serious situation. We may have to battle here in America for the flag that flies over our heads. America will never find the Catholic church an enemy."

WIDOW WHO BUILT UP BITTERS BUSINESS DIES

Mrs. George Wuppermann, Mother of Frank and Ralph Morgan, succumbs at 84.

By the Associated Press.

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 18.—Mrs. Josephine Wuppermann, president of the Angostura-Wuppermann Corporation, manufacturers of bitters, died yesterday of heart disease. She was 84 years old.

She had headed the firm, agent in the United States and Canada for bitters first brewed as an appetizer in Venezuela since the death of her husband, George Wuppermann, in 1915.

Mrs. Wuppermann, the mother of Ralph and Frank Morgan, actors, never missed a stockholders' or directors' meeting, and it was under her direction that the business expanded from a small agency to $1,000,000 corporation.

But, though she ran the company, she never learned the formula for its product, which is guarded by Dr. Alfredo Galo Siegert, grandson of the inventor. Copies are locked in vaults in Trinidad and London.

The bitters, known to all cocktail-mixers, first were concocted by Dr. Johann Gottlieb Benjamin Siegert, an army surgeon stationed at Angostura, a Venezuelan town now known as Ciudad Bolívar. He made the extract for Northerners who lost their appetites in the Tropics, but ship captains carried the bitters to North America and Europe. Mrs. Wuppermann's husband founded the United States agency in 1878.

Mrs. Wuppermann, a native of Jersey City, N. J., which was the headquarters of her business for many years, was a daughter of Joseph W. and Eliza Hovey Hancock. Her father operated a fleet of boats on the Hudson River prior to 1889, when he went to Venezuela to sell the Orinoco, taking his daughter with him. She was married the next year in Venezuela.

After her husband died, Mrs. Wuppermann took over the presidency of the J. W. Wuppermann Angostura Bitters Agency, Inc., the firm which, in 1933, became the Angostura-Wuppermann Corporation. She also served as president of the R. D. Cortina Co. from 1916 to 1920, and as president of Inks, Inc., since 1932.

Her son, Edward, director and general manager, said he was only "mother's high-class errand boy," and consulted her on the conduct of the company every day.

Prior to 1925, she went to her office daily. She also operated four Manhattan apartment houses, headed the Harlem Young Women's Christian Association in 1906, served the New York State Women's Republican Club as vice-president from 1928 to 1930, and the Roosevelt Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution as chaplain.

Her son, Frank Morgan, born Francis Philip Wuppermann, a vice-president and director of the company. With his brother, Ralph, also an actor, he was at his mother's bedside.

By the Associated Press.

SALINAS, Cal., Sept. 18.—Assembly of 1500 special deputies was ordered today by Sheriff Carl Abbott, who said he wanted to be prepared for activities in the lettuce workers' strike.

Automobiles with loudspeakers went through the streets, ordering the deputies to report for duty immediately at the National Guard armory. Shotgun barrels protruded from the windows of the cars. There were no pickets in the streets and only a few were gathered around the labor temple.

"The New Deal was given a mandate at the polls to cut operating expenses of government," he said. "Instead, a ring-in-the-nose Congress launched the greatest spending spree ever witnessed by any nation in time of peace."

AGAINST FREEING BOSTELMANN

Executive of Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. succumbs at 58.

Charles Yaste, department manager of the trunk and luggage factory of Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., died today of heart disease in a New York hotel room. He was 58 years old and lived at 4949 Nottingham Avenue.

Dr. Bredbeck showed the board a report made by Mildred Sanderson, superintendent of visiting nurses, which told of complaints that had been made by persons living next door to the home because of a "mentally irresponsible" woman living there, who, the complainants said, wandered about the neighborhood and annoyed them.

The proprietor of the home said that the woman in question had been at two sanitariums suffering from dementia praecox, but that she was harmless. She promised not to allow her to trespass, according to the report.

A former resident of Detroit, Mrs. Goodwin came to Washington about 18 years ago and has since been in Government service.

Friends said she had been estranged from about eight years from her husband, who now resides on the Pacific Coast.

CHARLES YASTE DIES IN EAST

Executive of Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. succumbs at 58.

Charles Yaste, department manager of the trunk and luggage factory of Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., died today of heart disease in a New York hotel room. He was 58 years old and lived at 4949 Nottingham Avenue.

Dr. Bredbeck showed the board a report made by Mildred Sanderson, superintendent of visiting nurses, which told of complaints that had been made by persons living next door to the home because of a "mentally irresponsible" woman living there, who, the complainants said, wandered about the neighborhood and annoyed them.

The proprietor of the home said that the woman in question had been at two sanitariums suffering from dementia praecox, but that she was harmless. She promised not to allow her to trespass, according to the report.

PictureMEXICO PUSHING LAND
DISTRIBUTION PROGRAMIn 20 Months It Has Done Half as Much as Was Done in 20 Preceding Years.By the Associated Press.
MEXICO, D. F., Sept. 18. — How President Cardenas is carrying out his program of dividing large estates among workers is indicated by the following facts: In 20 years, from 1915 through 1934, Mexican Governments had passed out 8,145-360 hectares (about 21,250,000 acres) of land to small farmers. In 20 months, from December, 1934, toAugust, 1936, the Cardenas administration had distributed 4,482,087 hectares, or more than half as much.In all, 1,081,012 Mexicans—many of them Indians who lost their tribal lands when the Spanish con-quistadores came, or under the 30-year Porfirio Diaz dictatorship—have benefited.Most recent illustration of the administration's determination to end the system of vast estates, occurred in connection with the strike of cotton pickers on 104 estates in the Laguna region of Northeastern Mexico. Having tried vainly to make peace between employers and employees, Cardenas announced, through the Confederation of Workers of Mexico, that the entire rich area, much of it owned by ab-senteé landlords, would be divided among the workers.The agrarian laws, first put on the books in 1915, were incorporated in the new Constitution of 1917.They and subsequent measures provide three methods of land distribution: Restitution, to persons or villages that could prove they had been illegally deprived of ancestral lands; donation, of idle lands to communities that could demonstrate their need for greater acreage; and confiscation, where the Government holds continued existence of great estates prejudicial to the common good.Mexican Governments have set up credit machinery—the National Agricultural Bank, associated regional banks, co-operative agricultural societies and warehouse associations—to help the small farmers produce and market their crops. A new phase of the agrarian program is the construction of communal mills.For quick results in selling used

INTRODUCED IN ILLINOISLegislators May Be Given Until Tuesday Night to Study Program.By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 17.—
Speaker John P. Devine today waited for the Legislature's reaction to the new series of eight relief bills, introduced in the House under the "by request" sponsorship of the retiring Speaker.It was believed that the House passage roll call might be delayed until next Tuesday night, instead of Monday, so that the Representatives can have an extra day to study the legally involved program agreed upon as a means of helping Chicago.For the first time during the year of special sessions, Devine assumed sponsorship of a bill. He also arranged for the House to stay in perfunctory session during the rest of the week in case additional bills must be introduced to satisfy Cham-pman & Cutler, Chicago attorneys who refused to approve the Hickman-Lantz relief levies in their present shape.Dr. Will Billman, secretary of the Legislative Reference Bureau, encountered his greatest trouble in drawing the bills to solve the Chicago overlapping township situation, where Chapman & Cutler contended double taxation would exist.
The county board was authorized to change township lines, and then provision had to be made for new taxes, township officers and disposal of property.With the Legislature to make the final decision, Billman drafted alternative bills to enable Rock Island and Freeport to get State aid even if they have pauper funds accumulated. At present, they must spend the money on hand before getting sales tax grants.One plan was for the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission's allocation to be made by figuring only the amount of funds needed against sales tax money available, without considering Lantz levy warrants as local relief assets.The other was for the accumulation to be prorated monthly during the current fiscal year.One measure submitted would give full authority for the local governmental units to make the maximum 30-cent Lantz pauper levy for the rest of the current fiscal year.DEMOCRATS NAME COMMITTEE HEADS FOR FALL CAMPAIGNTreasurer Nancy Made Chairman of

to Handle Publicity.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 18.—
James P. Aylward, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, yesterday announced the appointment of State Treasurer Richard R. Nacy as chairman of the Executive Committee of the organization for the fall campaign. Nacy, who under the State statutes is ineligible to succeed himself as Treasurer, will be in charge of the campaign headquarters when Aylward is unable to be here.Selection of Grover C. James of Joplin as chairman of the Speakers' Committee and of W. L. Bouchard of Flat River as head of the Publicity Committee was also announced by Aylward. Bouchard was Lloyd C. Stark's primary election campaign manager. Stark won the nomination for Governor.State committee headquarters for the campaign are being opened here this week and will be under the direction of Aylward. Publicity headquarters of the State Committee have been maintained here for

5 COMMITTEES NAMED FOR SECURITY STUDY

Each Will Consider Co-ordinating Branch of State and Federal Social Program.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 18.—Gov. Park's committee to find a way to co-ordinate the Missouri and Federal social security programs attacked the problem from five sides yesterday.

State Senator Allen McReynolds of Carthage, chairman of the State Social Security Committee, appointed five subcommittees to determine what the State should do legislatively to blend its program with the Federal Government's.

Park in naming the committee recently expressed the hope it would work out legislative proposals to eliminate conflicting points of the two programs—particularly those affecting the State's old age assistance program.

Subjects to be Studied.

Subjects to be studied by the subcommittees include unemployment compensation and Federal old age benefits, the State's old age assistance act in relation to Federal grants, relief problems, child welfare and public health work as well as possible revenue sources with which to pay for the social security activities.

State Senator George Rozier of Perryville, Arnold Griffith, State mine inspector of Excelsior Springs, and Mrs. Luella St. Clair Moss of Columbia were named on a subcommittee to study grants for unemployment compensation and Federal old age benefits.

The Rev. Robert M. Talbert of Cape Girardeau and Mgr. P. P. Crane of St. Louis were named as another to consider the State's old age pension program and Federal grants for it.

To Consider Revenue Sources.

Mrs. Mary E. Ryder of St. Louis, Earl H. Shackson of Hannibal, Mrs. Rose M. Ohaus of Kansas City and State Representative O. K. Armstrong of Springfield were delegated to study Federal grants to states to help dependent children, public health work and the blind.

Bishop William Scarlett of St. Louis, Prof. E. L. Morgan of Columbia and Mrs. Arthur B. McGlothan of St. Joseph were selected to consider Missouri's relief problem and also to make a study of the State's welfare activities with the view of consolidating and reorganizing it.

Mrs. W. H. H. Platt of Kansas City and McReynolds were placed on a subcommittee to consider possible sources of revenue to finance the social security program in the State.

SOCIALIST LABOR NOMINEE TO SPEAK IN CITY MONDAY

John W. Aiken will address public meeting in Swiss Hall, 3100 Iowa, at 8 P. M.

John W. Aiken, Socialist Labor candidate for President, will deliver an address Monday night at 8 o'clock at a public meeting in Swiss Hall, 3100 Iowa avenue.

He will explain his party's plans for setting up an industrial union form of government and will answer questions from the audience. The party's platform calls on the working classes to organize into socialist industrial unions to "place the land and the means of production in the hands of the useful producers."

Aiken, 40 years old and a resident of Chelsea, Mass., went to work at the age of 14 in a furniture factory and almost at once found himself involved in the labor movement through a strike. By trade he is a hardwood finisher.

JOINS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Samuel H. Mayes, 18, is youngest in Philadelphia organization.

Samuel Houston Mayes, 18-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Mayes of 4483 McPherson avenue, has signed for the coming season as a member of the cello section of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra directed by Dr. Leopold Stokowski. He will be the youngest member of the orchestra.

Mayes has been a student at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia since 1930 where he received instruction from Felix Salmon, well known English cellist. For the last three years he has been a soloist for the institute and has appeared in concerts throughout the East. He began studying music at the age of 7 in St. Louis and for five years was a pupil of Max Steinle, principal cellist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

BELLEVILLE MAN ENDS LIFE

George Lobsinger, 66, inhales gas in kitchen of home.

George Lobsinger, 66-year-old coal miner, was found dead early yesterday in the kitchen of his home in Belleville, apparently from inhaling gas. He was seated in front of a gas stove, with his head on a pillow, and one end of a hose fastened to a gas jet in his mouth.

He had removed a canary and potted house plants from the kitchen to a sun porch and had emptied the refrigerator of food. His wife found him dead when she returned home from a visit. She said Lobsinger had told her he feared he was losing his mind, and if he became convinced of it, would kill himself.

MISSOURI SINGER LEAVES GRAND OPERA TO TEACH VOICE

Phradie Wells, former Adair County Teacher, Going to Baylor U.

By the Associated Press.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Sept. 18.—From a schoolteacher's desk to the Metropolitan Opera and back to the school room again, Phradie Wells has completed a cycle in her career and turned toward her new job filled with plans and enthusiasm for American music for Americans.

This former Missouri farm girl, who spent 12 years with Metropolitan, told of her ambitions before leaving her home here for Waco, Tex., to be an instructor in voice at Baylor University.

Long an advocate of operas with a native theme, Miss Wells declared that the "American field of operatic composition hardly has been scratched."

"The American cowboy long has appealed to me as an excellent subject for opera," she said. "So fascinating has this been to her she may try sometime to write a cowboy opera."

"There are also those noted Americans, Mark Twain and Will Rogers—held to be typical products of an original culture that fosters homey philosophy and disdain for top-hat snobbery," she pointed out. "I see no reason why they could not be utilized as opera types."

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The Count of Covadonga, cheered by a visit from the mother he had not seen for more than a year, rested comfortably at Presbyterian Hospital today while she set out to untangle his marital and romantic affairs. The mother, Victoria Eugenie, one-time Queen of Spain, reached the United States yesterday. Her son is suffering from hemophilia, a blood disease.

Friends of the Count, who renounced his rights to the Spanish throne when he married the Cuban commoner, Edelma Sampredo, said his mother probably would take him to England. Such a course, they pointed out, would take him away both from the legal difficulties surrounding his suit to annul the marriage, and his new romance with Marta Rosafort, artist's model.

Freshmen, Already on Campus, Begin Three-Day Period of Conferences With Faculty Advisors.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 18.—The University of Illinois opened its doors for the sixtieth year this week.

While classes do not start until Wednesday, the new freshman class today started a three-day period of conferences with faculty advisers and other orientation activities.

Dr. Arthur Cutler Willard, in his third year as president, will guide the student body, which may be the largest in the institution's history. Registration permits issued to freshmen greatly exceed the number issued a year ago, and an increase of 10 per cent in the total enrollment is probable. While the first semester enrollment last fall was 11,528, a total of 14,036 resident students attended the university some time during the year. Of these, 1119 were in the Chicago divisions of medicine, dentistry and pharmacy.

The instructional, research and extension staff this fall will be slightly larger than a year ago, when it numbered 1294. Besides these, 979 others were employed as typists, clerks, janitors, laborers, etc.

The General Assembly granted $4,360,001 for the current biennium for the university's maintenance and operation. Other sources of income for the past year included student fees, Federal income devoted almost exclusively to agricultural work, gifts, and endowments, totaling $2,195,614.

HARVESTER CO. WORKS ON NEW COTTON PICKER

Plant Uses Barb Instead of Smooth Spindler of Rust Brothers' Machine.

and has the appearance of an army tank. It is mounted on its own tractor, instead of being pulled as a separate unit, as the Rust machine is. On the left side a large device cleans the cotton after it is picked.

The plants feed through an adjustable tunnel on the right side, as in the Rust machine. Instead of the Rust's endless belt of smooth spindles, however, the new machine has two upright drums carrying barbed spindles.

The drums are staggered, the front one penetrating the rows from the left side, the rear one penetrating them from the right. The barbs revolve, catch the cotton, then reverse their revolutions and unwind the cotton, which is removed by a duffing brush and blown through a conduit to the cleaner.

BEER SIGNS SAY 'BEEP' OR 'BEE'S' IN CALIFORNIA

STRIKERS FIRE RAILROAD CAR DURING MINNEAPOLIS CLASH Men Arriving With Food for Workers Driven Out; One Picket Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 18.—The RCA Manufacturing Co. granted pay increases of 3 to 5 cents an hour to 9000 workers yesterday. Joseph G. Minton, chairman of the Negotiations Committee of the United Electrical & Radio Workers, with which the Employers' Committee Union has been in conflict, contend the rise was the result of a recent strike settlement.

Against Law to Use the Word in Letters More Than 6 Inches High.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—Californians who wish to drink in public look for signs of "beep" "bee-r" or "bees on draught," for it is against the law to advertise beer in letters more than six inches high. Moreover, the word "saloon" is barred and so are such substitutes as tavern, inn and bistro.

When California joined the rush to legalize liquor sales by the drink and package, the enabling legislation prohibited the use of the word saloon and confined single drink sales to bona fide cafes, where no beer or stronger drink could be served without food. Enforcement was placed in the hands of the State Board of Equalization.

"Bona fide" drinking places sprang up overnight with sandwiches for display purposes only. Signs—from a foot to a yard high—began appearing on the streets that "beer-wine-whisky" were inside with mention of food in display painted letters.

The Board of Equalization saw an unprecedented growth of eating establishments and decided beer or stronger drinks could not be mentioned in letters more than six inches high. Shortly thereafter it ruled that tavern, inn, bistro, etc., were not proper words to hang in lights in front of drinking places.

The result: Gaudy illuminated signs spell out "cave," "avern," "beer-wine," "cavern," "peer-sandwiches," "cuffet," "puffet."

Some of the places merely put up the name of the host, or a symbolic figure.

California voters will have three choices at the polls in November.

One is a proposal by the United Dry Forces of California to write local option into the State constitution.

An opposing body of opinion, operating chiefly through the Southern California Businessmen's Association, is submitting an amendment tightening up liquor regulation but not permitting local option. "Citizens in every community should have access to legal liquor," the association contends.

Or, the voters may choose to reject both amendments and retain the present set-up which, with minor exception, permits any kind of liquor establishment to operate anywhere.

The 21 organizations making up the United Dry Forces disclaim any immediate hope of State-wide prohibition. They insist, however, that dry-temperature communities should be dry in fact and hence that local option would be merely "fair play."

For the development of a nation, culture based on a study of the thought, and protect the "University," against the wave of anti-intellectualism which he said was passing around the world to the real of religion.

Unfortunately there are ominous signs that a new form of bigotry is on the rise. This is most serious, and the functioning of the branches of the Federal Government, the force of modern capitalism must be dissected as carefully as the geologist examines the origin of the rocks.

"It is only when we have attained this philosophy that we can 'above find a friend in truth.' When America is dedicated to that which compels a man to live his life
with a sense of his civic significance,
it is most abiding, and
the rich individual diversity of the truly civilized state is born only
of the wisdom to choose ways to achieve, which do not hurt one's neighbors. And I beg you to think of tolerance and peace not as indifferent and neutral virtues but as active and positive principles.

"I am not, you will observe, conceiving of the university as a mere spectator of the great national and international drama in which all of us, despite ourselves, are involved.
Here are to be trained not lawyers and doctors merely, not teachers and business men merely, but to be trained in the fullest sense.

Truth in the First Place.

"Harvard should train men to be citizens in that high athenian sense which compels a man to live his life
with a sense of his civic significance,
it is most abiding, and
the rich individual diversity of the truly civilized state is born only
of the wisdom to choose ways to achieve, which do not hurt one's neighbors.

"I am asking the sons of Harvard to dedicate themselves not only to the perpetuation, but also to the enlargement of that spirit. To pay ardent reverence to the past but to recognize no less the direction of the future; to understand philosophies we do not accept and hope we find it difficult to share; to account the service of mankind the highest ambition a man can follow, and to know that there is no calling so humble that it cannot be instinct with that ambition; never to be different to what may affect our neighbors; always, as Coleridge said, to put truth in the first place and not in the second; these I would affirm are qualities by which the real is distinguished from the nominal scholar.

"Many students who have come to Harvard in the past have left it with inquiring and open minds, ready to render service to the nation. They have been given much and from them much has been expected. They have rendered great service.

Praise for Noted Alumni.

"I am confident, of the importance of Harvard that its sons have fully participated in each great drama of our nation's history. They have met the challenge of the event; they have seen in the challenge, opportunity to fulfill the end the University exists to serve.

As the Chief Executive of the nation I bring you the solicitation of the accounting office, and David Heller, housemaster.

ADDRESS BY HEAD OF UNIVERSITY

W. Conant Calls on Hearers to Maintain Freedom of Discussion and Unmolested Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 18.— President Conant, in top hat and gown, sat in a cold rain in Harvard's tercentenary open air theater today and helped his school celebrate its 300th anniversary.

Silk hats and university gowns clipped with rain as John McElroy, chief of Middlesex County, called out the ceremonies climaxing Harvard's three-day fest.

President Roosevelt was a member of the class of 1904.

He was the fifth Harvard man to be President of the United States.
John Adams, who succeeded George Washington, and his son, John Quincy Adams, the sixth President, were Harvard graduates. Rutherford B. Hayes, a graduate of Kenyon College, studied law at Harvard. The two Roosevelts, Theodorus and Franklin, complete the list—the longest of any educational institution. All five men were lawyers.

The President sat between James Conant and A. Lawrence Leavitt, present and past presidents of the university, on a platform on the stage. Both were scholars and scientists.

The rain let up a little as the centenary chorus sang "In Devotion to God."

Remarks by Curley.

"As Governor of Massachusetts," declared Gov. Curley, "I am happy on this field of opportunity to greet the great people to this great institution for its contribution to the happiness of mankind the world over."

Applause greeted Curley's reference to the President's attendance.

He had recalled the visit to Harvard of another chief executive—Admiral William H. Standard, chief of naval operations and member of the Tercentenary Commission, occupied a seat close by.

on this field of opportunity to greet the great people to this great institution for its contribution to the happiness of mankind the world over."

Applause greeted Curley's reference to the President's attendance.

He had recalled the visit to Harvard of another chief executive—
Admiral William H. Standard, chief of naval operations and member of the Tercentenary Commission, occupied a seat close by.

The rain let up a little as the centenary chorus sang "In Devotion to God."

Remarks by Curley.

"As Governor of Massachusetts," declared Gov. Curley, "I am happy
on this field of opportunity to greet the great people to this great institution for its contribution to the happiness of mankind the world over."

ALGONQUIN GOLF CLUB, Sept. 18.—Miss Sara Louise Guth, Algonquin, St. Louis district women's golf champion, will try to lift the Missouri crown from Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, in the 36-hole final of the second Annual State tournament here tomorrow.

Miss Guth won from Mrs. Harry H. Silverford, Kansas City, in their semifinal match here today, 4 and 2, while Mrs. Hill defeated Miss Anna Sue Kennedy, Columbia, also 4 and 3.

Mrs. Hill, one of the outstanding women golfers of the country, undoubtedly will rule favorite over the less experienced Miss Guth whose play has been spotty at times brilliant and again not so good.

Miss Guth, however, has the shots to make the match a real contest if she is playing her best, and after winning the district title for the past three years she has enough practice playing in front of galleries not to become excited even at the prospect of playing Mrs. Hill.

Plays Poorly in First Nine.
Miss Guth played just fair golf against Mrs. Silverford, and after having a mediocre first nine which she made in 42 strokes to be five up at the turn on Mrs. Silverford, who was out in 46, Miss Guth played a little better coming in.

That is, better after she had passed her jinx hole, the tenth, where she again put a ball in the water, and took a bad seven. After that she steadied and finished the match on the fifteenth green by knocking in a putt about 10 feet uphill for a four.

Mrs. Hill had not lost a hole in her three previous matches, but she dropped the first three to Miss Kennedy, the first when Miss Kennedy scored a birdie due to a great approach shot and the next two because of stymies. At the third she knocked Miss Kennedy's ball into the hole.

A peculiar thing about the match was that only one hole of the 15 played was halved. That was No. 14.

Mrs. Hill Rallies to Take Lead.
Mrs. Hill, after being three down after three holes, won the next three with fours to square the match and then went one up at the seventh with a birdie four where Miss Kennedy took three putts for a six.

The champion was trapped at the

YANKEE BATTING OFFSET WEAK PITCHING IN FLAG VICTORY

4.77 RUNS PER GAME ALLOWED BY STAFF DURING 1936 CAMPAIGN

Pearson, Obtained in Trade, Most Effective, Yielding 4.05 Tallies Per Nine Innings; Gomez Disappointment.

By Herman Wecke.

That terrific batting and not sensational pitching carried the Yankees to the pennant in the American League is evinced by the records, which show that not a single member of Joe McCarthy's hill staff has stopped the enemy with fewer than four runs a contest, on the average.

As a staff, the twirlers now working for the American League's representatives for the 1936 world series, have yielded 669 runs in 1277 innings, an average of 4.77 a game. This shows that the Yanks, in order to win, have had to average five or more runs in each contest. That they have done more than this is shown by statistics, which show that the club in its 144 contests has tallied 1016 times, an average of a little better than seven a game.

So the Yankees' overwhelming triumph in the American League can easily be called a victory of the sluggers and not of the pitchers.

As for the pitchers, Monte Pearson, the right-hander obtained last winter in the trade with the Indians for Johnny Allen, has been the most effective among the regulars. Pearson, who suffered an ankle injury in his most recent start against the Chicago White Sox, had yielded an average of 4.05 runs a game, with 96 tallies scored against him in 216 innings. Johnny Murphy has the same figure for runs allowed, but he has appeared in only 84 innings, being used mainly as a relief hurler. He has gone the route only twice, whereas Pearson has pitched 15 complete games.

Perce Pat Malone, who was one of McCarthy's pitchers when the Chicago Cubs won the National League pennant in 1929 and then lost to the Athletics in the world series, is next in line, with 414, based on 58 games in 125 rounds. Malone has won 31 games and lost four. He has toiled in only four complete contests.

Charley Ruffing, with 23 complete games to his credit, more than the total for any other twirler on the Yankees' staff, has been found for 4.32 runs (earned and unearned) in each nine rounds. Winning 19 and losing 11, Ruffing has been scored upon 121 times in 253 innings. Ruffing has fanned 96 batters and passed 86.

One of the big disappointments on the Yankee staff this season has been Lefty Gomez. The southpaw, who only a couple of years ago was the most effective twirler in the American League, has been able to start and finish only nine times during the campaign. He has won 12 and lost seven and in 177 innings he has yielded 100 runs, an average of 5.04 in each contest. Always a master of control, Gomez has been having trouble in this respect, having issued 109 bases on balls, while striking out 98 batters. Pearson is the only member of the staff who has issued more passes. The right-hander has walked 131 against his total of 113 strikeouts.

Although he was won 13 games and lost only four to rank as among the leading pitchers in the circuit, Irving Hadley, the former Brownie, has not been an effective one, for he has allowed 5.49 runs a game, with 98 tallies for the opposition in 168 innings. In compiling his record, Hadley has hurled only seven full games.

John Wicker has a 4.77 average of runs allowed, while Brown and Wicker, the last named a team series, beginning tomorrow afternoon.

OHIO TEAMS TO PLAY FOR SANDLOT TITLE

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18.—All-Ohio finish in the National Amateur Baseball Federation's tournament was assured today as Dayton and Toledo remained to battle this afternoon for the right to meet Cleveland, only undefeated team in the meet, in a three-game-titular series beginning tomorrow afternoon.

The Clevelanders yesterday eliminated Detroit, last out-of-the-state entry, 4 to 2, when Shortstop Wally Pavlicic blasted out a home run with a teammate aboard only one inning after a disturbance occurred.

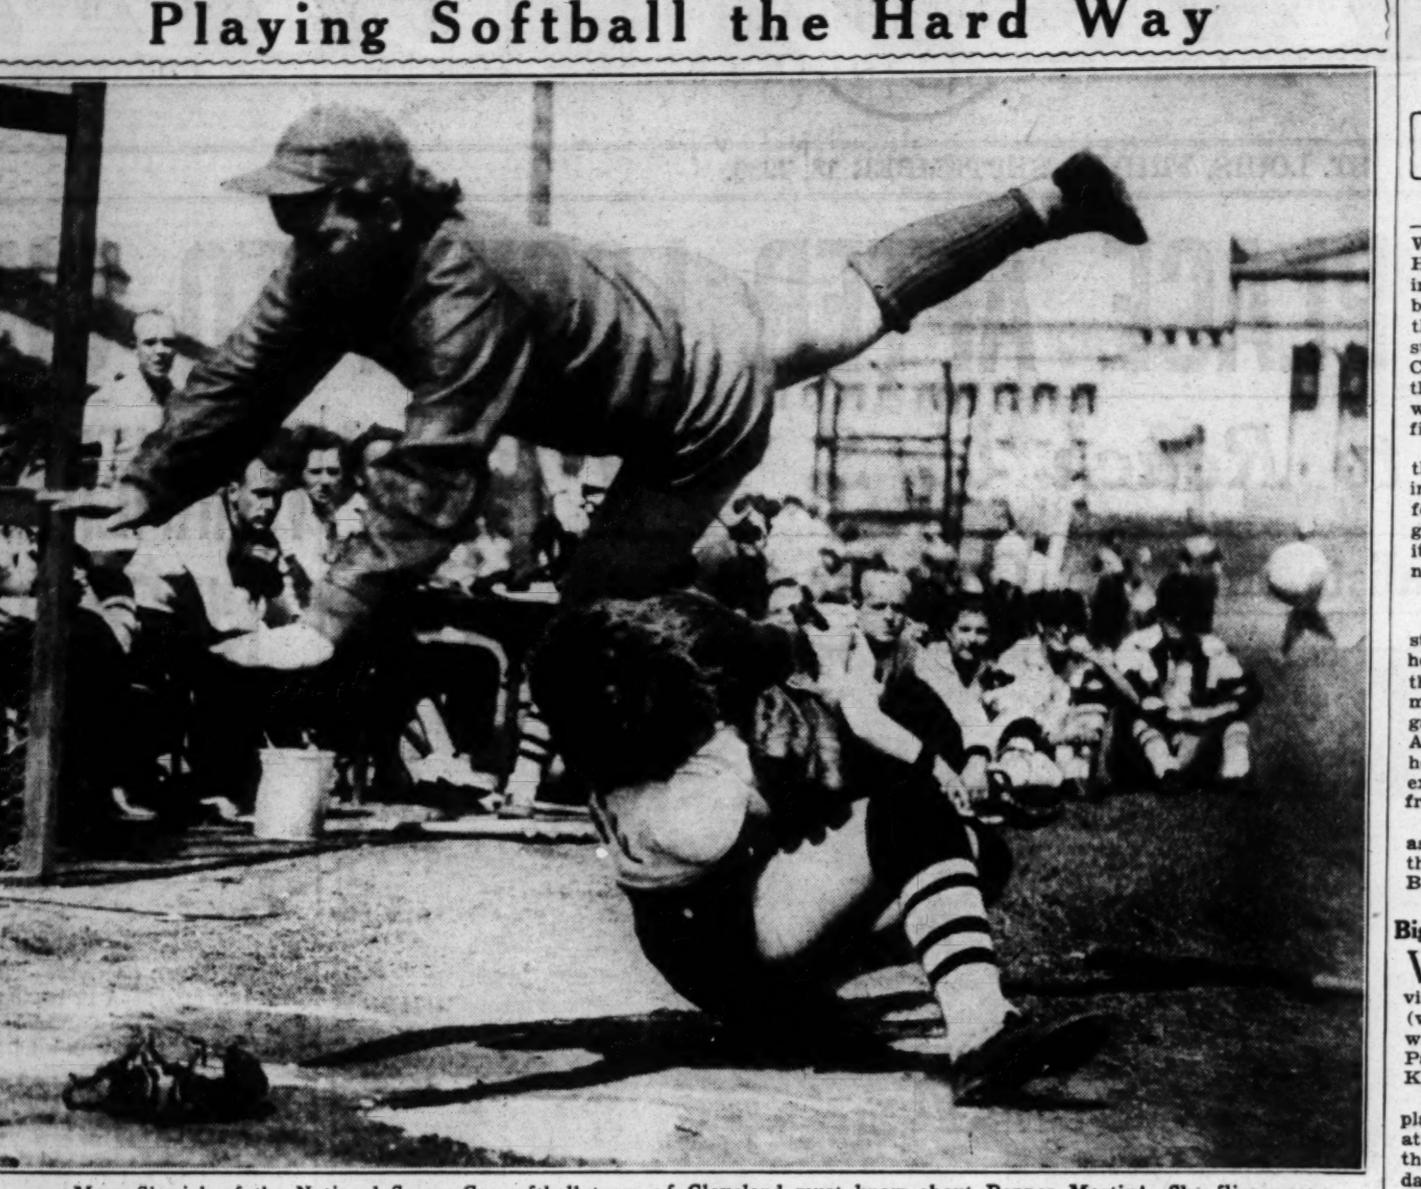

With the score tied, 2 to 2, in the fifth inning, Detroit players swarmed around Umpire James Meehan to protest his decisions and Cleveland fans about 200 fans swelled the throng.

Meehan had just ejected his third Detroit player from the game and was struck several times.

When they met in the Preakness Handicap, High Quest's nose was in front, although Cavalcade had urged him to his utmost down the stretch. The Brookmeade stable had declared to win with Cavalcade, which made it appear that the better horse of the two won that day, when High Quest finished first.

Unfortunately the final test of their merits was prevented by an injury which retired High Quest for good and which—so the grapevine reports of the day had it—cost the great rider Mack Garner his contract.

Cavalcade was not of American stock, his sire being Lancegrave, a horse which finished second in the English Derby. His dam, the mare Hastily, in foal to Lancegrave, was sold because F. Walter Armstrong, the purchaser, liked her blood lines, not because he expected a great racer to result from her mating with Lancegrave.

Cavalcade was sold for $1200 as a yearling and developed into the winner of $127,135 for the Brookmeade Stable.

SOFTBALL MEETNUNN AND SHEA ARE STARS IN LONG PRACTICE
AT ST. LOUIS U.

The Dixie Oils of Detroit, 1936 softball champions, were eliminated from the second annual national softball tournament sponsored by the American Softball Association last night when they were defeated by the Denver M. Wrights, 1 to 0, in a replay of a protested game.

The victory of Schepps of Dallas, Tex., and the defeat of the Edgewood Kennedy Birdies girls of Hollywood, Cal., featured last night's play at the five A. S. B. A. parks.

Another thrill was provided by Chet Jordan of the Hollywood team who equalled the city strikeout record by fanning 21 Wormser bats at St. Louis Park.

HOWARD CREEL ENTERS
TOURNEY; 100 LISTED.

The latest, and most important entry, for the national left-handed golfers' tournament to be held next week was that of Howard Creel, Pueblo (Colo.) golfer, who has held many honors. He sent in his entry yesterday for the event that opens next Monday.

Varsity Squad Makes Gains.

The varsity, using passes only sparingly, had little trouble running through and over the freshmen but the youngsters did put up a stubborn defense against their heavier and more experienced opponents.

Creel holds two course records—the Broadmoor Country Club mark of 65 and the Pueblo Country Club record of 64. He was low score in the qualifying round for the national amateur tournament in 1934. He was Colorado State amateur champion in 1931. He has made many holes-in-one.

Creel played Benny Richter at Orville White in a match two years ago and won the match, 4 up, though both Richter and White shot par 72 at the St. Louis Country Club.

More than 100 players are now entered in the tournament. Entries close tonight at 6 o'clock.

More Hard Work Planned.

There will be no opportunity for St. Louis or Washington to scout their opening-game opponents—Missouri School of Mines or Bradley Tech as those teams, too, will be playing their first games. It is doubtful that either Jimmy or Mull will deign to scout those teams even if they were an opportunity for neither sizes up as a dangerous opponent.

Today, the hard work will continue at both practice fields, the Bears working twice each day and the Billikens, once. School for the latter opens today.

Hot Off the Gridiron.

There's a guess as to the makeup of the St. Louis U. team that will face Rolla at the starting whistle a week from tonight. The tackles will be Rossini and Cianciolo, the ends, Capt. Fitzgerald and Mitchell. At the guard posts Ben Putnam and either Vollerin or Keleman (probably the former) will be stationed. Chances are the sophomore Gorman will be posted at center with Lou Drane at quarter, Hermann and Nunn at the halves and Kloepper at full-back.

One of the most promising of the Billikens' freshman squad is Ernie Cushing who hails from Randolph, Mass., the home town of Mel McGinnis, last year's sensational freshman. Cushing is a half-back like McGinnis. He played a whale of a game defensively against the vanity yesterday.

Washington practice started yesterday with Gail Duthman and Percy Gill in charge in the absence of Head Coach Conzelman. Gill appeared later. He had been in conference with the University Finance Committee, a pretty important body despite the fact that not a single member can kick a football or catch a pass.

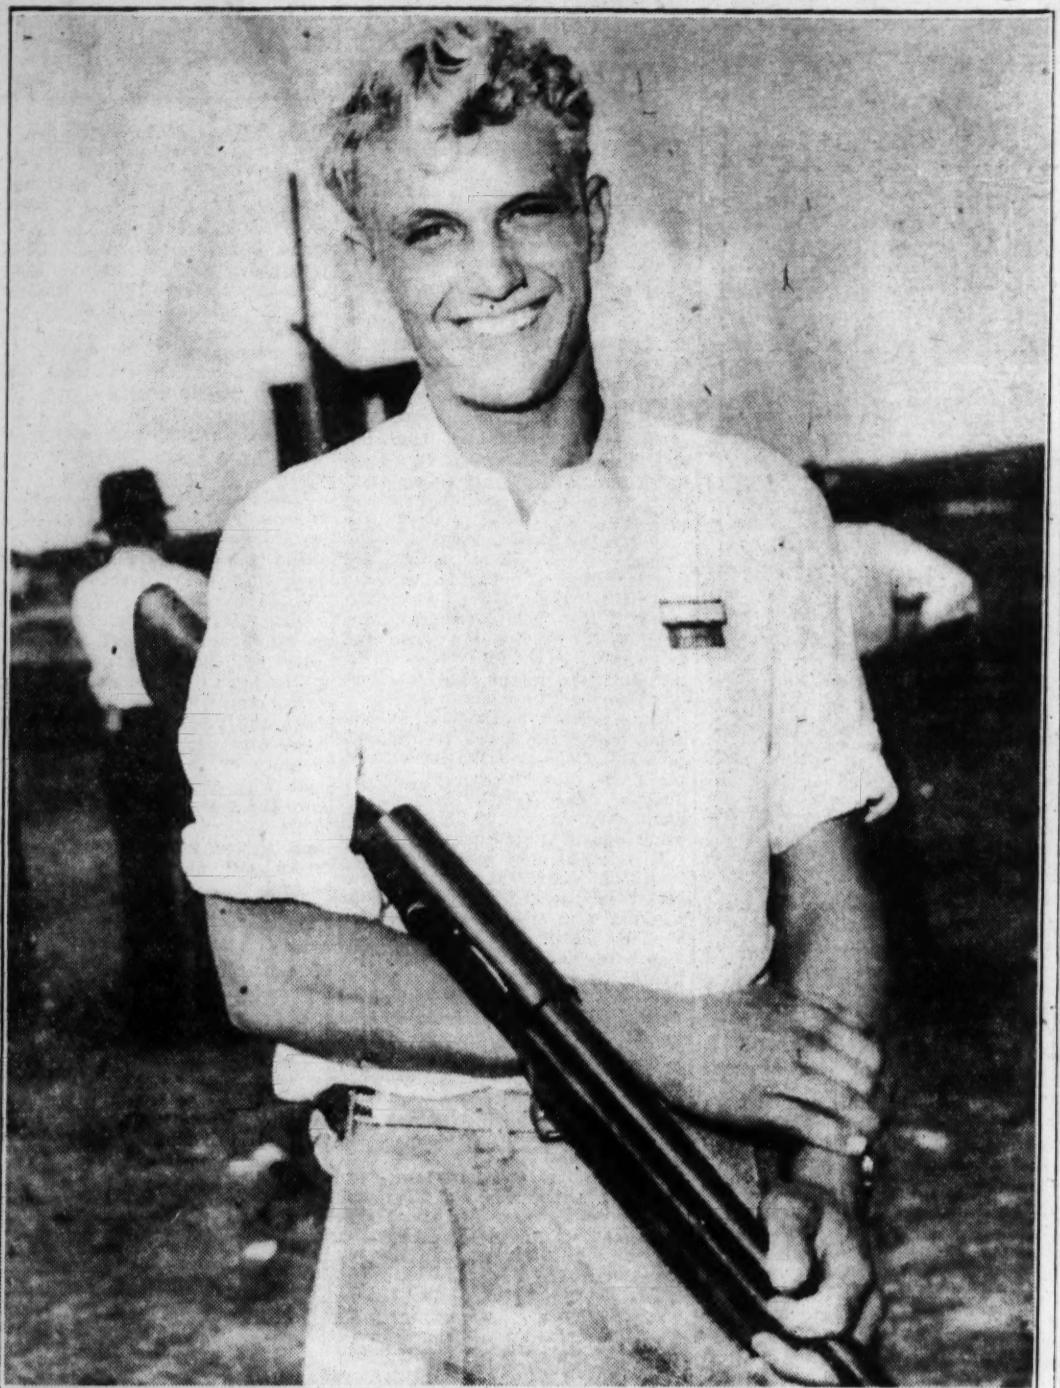

Coach Muellerie is in regretful mood. A center all through high school and college, "Mull" finally has decided that he would have been a master fullback. Oh, well, Jack Bann probably would like to play "Hammer." Probably, though, "Mull" would be the funnier if he played in the backfield.

Red Hemp is blossoming forth at St. Louis U. as an excellent short passer. If he continues in present form, he ought to be very helpful to the Billiken cause.

SOPHOMORES AT ILLINOIS ARE CHEERING 'ZUP'

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Illinois' hopes of climbing back into the Big Ten football limelight appeared today to ride on the legs of a speedy, hard-playing band of sophomores.

The Illini varsity yesterday overwhelmed the freshmen, 71 to 0, and it was the play of six rookies that thrilled the 2000 spectators and brought a smile to the face of Coach Bob Zuppke. Jay Wardley and Bob Wehrli, both sophomores, scored two touchdowns each, as did veteran Ken Nelson, at quarterback. Leo Stasica, Ken Zimmerman and Deane Frary, other sophomore half-timers, each scored once, while Harry Lasater, whose Coach Zuppke believes will develop into a great fullback, started off with a touch-down.

Some Points After:

Stasica also converted four points from placement. Wardley looked good on defense, one of his touch-downs coming on a 40-yard dash after he had intercepted a fresh pass.

Another sophomore, Bill Booth, apparently has solved a backfield problem for Coach Francis Schmidt at Ohio State. The 177-pound speedster, with a fine display of open-field running, kicking and passing, earned the starting left halfback position with Tippy Dye, Johnny Betteridge and Jim McDonald.

At Michigan, Coach Harry Kipke gave his Wolverines a ball-handling drill. The Minnesota aggregation trounced the reserves in scrimmage with Clarence "Tuffy" Thompson and Vic Spadaccini contributing the touchdowns. Dwight Reed and Ray King, ends, rejoined the squad after being out with injuries. At Iowa, scrimmage resulted in a cut hand for Floyd Deheer, huky tackle, and Wayne Mason, end, but Coach Ossie Sienert was heartened by the way Oze Simmons, the speedy Negro back, reacted off long gains.

The Wisconsin squad went through a skunk session, formation drill and passing workout, while at Chicago the Maroons blocked and tackled prepared to scrimmaging Friday or Saturday. Steve Toth and Ollie Adelman, backs, impressed Coach Lyn Waldorf at Northwestern, where ineligibility troubles have caused some gloom.

Indiana Blocking.

Blocking was the big item on Indiana's long drill, and at Notre Dame, Coach Elmer Layden spent most of his time jogging candidates for the center position, Fred Mundee, Pat McCarty, Ed Louangi and John Fogel getting most of the attention.

Football was forgotten again at Purdue after a second death from the shower-room explosion of last week. Tom McGannon died of burns suffered in the fire which also brought death to another grid regular, Carl Dahlbeck. The varsity-freshmen game, scheduled for Saturday, was canceled.

LEELIVELT RESIGNS AS LOS ANGELES LEADER

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.—The Los Angeles Baseball Club shopped around today for a new manager to replace Jack Leelivet, a veteran of 31 years as player and pilot in the game.

President David P. Fleming may not shop far, since Harry (Truck) Hannah, who has been Leelivet's right hand man and coach for many seasons, has been mentioned for the job.

Leelivet, carrying out a wish he made last winter, announced his resignation last night and said he was seeking a position as scout for a major league club.

In eight years as manager of the Angels, Leelivet won two Pacific Coast championships and tied for two more, losing in play-offs. The Angels finished in a fifth place finish.

PILNEY'S TEAM LOSES.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Andy Pilney, former Notre Dame football star, had made his debut as a coach today, but it was not quite as successful as some of the appearances he used to make on the gridiron for the Irish. Pilney's Wehr High School squad, outweighed about 10 pounds per man, was defeated 49 to 0 by Loyola Academy.

Seven School Football Games

Today and Tonight; Beaumont
And Collinsville in Feature

By Reno Hahn.

Football gets off to an early start this season with seven high school games scheduled for this afternoon and evening. One of the afternoon games will bring together two teams that are expected to be among the best in the district. This is the game between Beaumont and Collinsville at the Public Schools Stadium, starting at 3:30 o'clock. The other afternoon game has Dupo (Ill.) playing at Ritenour.

Tonight's games call for University City to go to Mount Vernon, Ill., Normandy to Perryville, Mo., East St. Louis to Centralia, and Madison to Venice. There will be one night game tomorrow, with Sparta playing at Belpre.

Zukosky, fullback.

In the line will be Ed Evers and either Ray Zeisel or Monk Mills, ends; Paul Pfaff and Woodrow Wilson, tackles; Bill Fields and Howard Hough, guards, and Capt. Nick Schuline, center.

Beaumont Is Favorite.

Beaumont, with 13 lettermen, is the pre-season choice for the City League title, while Collinsville, with 11 members of last year's team back, is one of the favorites for the Madison-St. Clair Conference championship.

Beaumont, always noted for its fine lettermen, will also have a good scoring backfield this year, with Wilson Schwenk calling signals, Jack Roehlik and Gene Rapplean at the halves and big Vic Theilandy at fullback.

The other starters are: Gene Martin and Albert Boain, ends; Gene Blader and Harvey Fisher, tackles; Bill Morgan, center, and Louis Kaufman, guard.

Normandy at Perryville.

Normandy sends a veteran team to Perryville and will probably make it a sad night for the dedication of Perryville's new stadium.

TWO-YEAR-OLD CREDITED WITH 1:10.3, IN SLOP, FOR 6 FURLONGS

By the Associated Press.
BELMONT PARK RACETRACK, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Racing through rain and a gale over a sloppy track, 15 two-year-olds splashed down the Widener straightaway in this afternoon's opening race here with Flyanetta, a 1 to 1 hazard, leading all the way and scoring by five lengths. Chanting was nearest in pursuit throughout the six furlongs and took the place by a length and a half from Grand Jester. Misapprehension was a 5 to 1 favorite in the open race but she never could get up.

The winner covered the six furlongs in the remarkably fast time of 1:10.3.

FISCHER WINS FROM GOODMAN TO REACH U. S. GOLF FINAL

ties this morning, but when he came back to the clubhouse, after the match, Jack conceded it was "the best worse than Scotch mist."

The veteran Voigt's game virtually went to pieces under the combined pressure of the tournament's worst playing conditions and his opponent's sharpshooting. McLean was four up at the turn. But for the fact that the Scot's short game cooled off on the last few holes he would have doubled his margin. He missed chances to win both the sixteenth and seventeenth by taking three to get down from the front edge of the greens.

Post Scores of 77.

McLean, shooting the most resourceful golf of the semifinals, fired the most potent challenge to American homebreds since Ross (Sandy) Somerill took the amateur trophy to Canada four years ago. It not only appeared McLean would be the first Briton to reach the finals since T. Philip Perkins turned the trick in 1928 at Brant Burn, but that Scottish Jack would be a much more formidable challenger. Perkins was beaten, 10 and 9, by Bobby Jones.

McLean and Goodman, who dropped a nine-foot putt for a birdie deuce on the home hole to finish a square with Fischer, each posted 77, four over par, for the 18 holes. The Scot was in less trouble than any other semifinalist, however. Fischer picked up on one hole, leaving his medal round a matter of guesswork, while Voigt had an 88 for his troublesome round.

Goodman negotiated the incoming nine in 36, even par. The two young Middle-Westerners waged a sensational close match in which Goodman's generally superior play around the green was a dominant factor. The Nebraskan's reliable chipper frequently came to his rescue. Twice, on the outgoing nine, he sank long putts to offset Fischer's greatest length from tee to green.

Lead Changes Hands.

Goodman squared the match three times. Fischer twice. The Ohioan gained a one-hole lead on the outward half of the wind-swept course but Goodman staged a brisk rally to win the tenth and eleventh. The tide then shifted to Fischer's favor as he won the thirteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth by playing a more effective short game.

Goodman missed a two-foot putt on the seventeenth, with a chance to square matters, but his deuce at the clubhouse hole left them just where they started.

Voigt Defeats Campbell in Spite of Finger Injury.

The four survived another day of double-barreled competition marked by the greatest golf played thus far and a minimum of surprises yesterday. Voigt sprang, perhaps the biggest upset by the thoroughness with which he eliminated Seattle's redoubtable Scotty Campbell, 4 and 3, despite painfully cut finger.

Voigt's mishap, caused when he pulled off a loose string from one of his clubs, crept the most excitement of the quarterfinal round. Someone summoned an ambulance, but Voigt refused to take any first aid. He was three up at the twelfth, when the medical staff rushed to the rescue, and continued his machine-like golf, following the interruption, to end the match on the fifteenth green.

McLean, the young Scotch whisky salesman, didn't have much trouble disposing of the former Harvard captain, Mel Heath Jr. of Boston, 3 and 4, in the fifth round, but he needed a sub-par brand of golf to eliminate the home club star, John F. Riddell Jr., 3 and 1, in the afternoon.

Riddell, after a sensational 20-hole triumph in the morning over Tommy Taller, in par-equaling golf for the entire route, was in a challenging mood. Consequently it took all of McLean's resources, under severe pressure, to retain a thin lead against the challengers of his veteran opponent. The Scot was two under par, for the 17 holes played, and that, as it turned out, was the best performance of the quarterfinals.

Goodman was extended for the first time by the fighting Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) entry, Ray Billows, after routing the 18-year-old Englishman, John Langley, by 5 and 3 in the fifth round. Billows, who plays no favorites and possesses a best title record with two undisputed conference championships and a share in two others.

He Didn't Want Much.

THEY are telling the story of a team in a clubhouse after the conference football championship. All the players but one were hilarious. The exception was the team captain who, that day, had made four touchdowns and had been the outstanding star of the game.

The coach approached the downcast captain and said, "Hey, what's the matter. You were the star of the game, you're going to graduate in June, you are president of the senior class and of the biggest fraternity on the campus. Why, all the gloom?"

Said the sad leader. "I know, Coach, but see, I wish I could read and write."

All Right, Here's Another.

COACHES from all sections of the country recently had a convention in New York during an informal discussion.

Adam Walsh, captain of the Notre Dame team which included the "Four Horsemen" and the "Seven Mules" asked Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback of that great team to explain one of Coach Rockne's odd formations.

"Gosh" Stuhldreher said, "that was a queer one. Of course, all teams pull their guards out for interference these days but this play called for the center to pull out as well."

You couldn't get away with that," objected a coach in the group, "who was to stand guard in the center's place?"

"Why, the quarterback" broke in Walsh, pointing to Stuhldreher. "How did the play work out?" someone then asked Stuhldreher.

"I haven't the faintest idea" the Wisconsin coach replied, "I never called it. Mrs. Stuhldreher had no foolish children that I know of and I always have avoided fatal injury."

Only logical that Warren Giles, head of the Rochester club should be mentioned as a possible successor of MacPhail as general manager of the Cincinnati club.

"Why wouldn't his name be mentioned?" asked Rickey. "He is the outstanding man in his field in the country."

Rickey declined to make any further comment on MacPhail's resignation. Sam Brandon, owner of the Cardinals, was not available for a statement regarding the possibility of Giles leaving his organization to join the major league club.

WRESTLING RESULTS

TORONTO—Everett Marshall, 221, of Ohio, defeated Fred McLean, 215, of Canada, 10 to 9. Marshall won two straight falls. Ivan Mangano, 215, California, defeated Joe Cox, 228, Kansas City, 10 to 9. Mangano, 215, of Canada, City, Kan.—Rudy La Dura, 205, Boca Grande, Fla., and Casimiro Pulaski, 205, Poland, threw Albert Mills, England.

-- ADDITIONAL SPORT NEWS --

Mrs. Hill, First-Flight Golfer, Takes Game Seriously; Doesn't Believe Dieting Helps Players

Big time golf is just as serious a proposition for women as it is for men, in the opinion of Mrs. Opal S. Hill, who will make an effort soon to win the one title she has not been able to land since she began competition—the U. S. championship.

"When you play in the national," said Mrs. Hill as she hit a bag full of practice balls at Algonquin, "your opponent just doesn't make any mistakes. You have to play shot for shot and usually the one who is putting that day wins."

"Perhaps the hardest match I ever recall playing was against Mrs. Leona Cheney at White Marsh Country Club, Philadelphia, which I won, one up in 24 holes.

Some Real Putting.

"Each of us had to sink four to six foot putts on five of the six extra holes to stay in the match, and I can tell you, after it was over I was so tired that a night's rest didn't restore me, so I lost to Dorothy Traung the next day."

"I have noticed that after having one or two hard matches, then running into an overtime contest, you are just about through in a tournament like the national."

"Against Mrs. Cheney I was three up at one time and she fired three successive birdies at me to square the contest, so you can see the kind of golf you may expect to meet with in the national."

Mrs. Hill is not in favor of tournament golfers trying to stay too slender, and she pointed out that most of the women who have won the national have had to have sufficient reserve strength to meet them through a week of hard play.

"Two of the younger girls playing in this tournament told me they thought they would go on a diet," she laughed, "but I pointed out to them they were foolish if they expected to get anywhere in tournament golf. You simply have to have the strength to carry on."

There are some few lighter moments for practice.

Mrs. Hill looks upon her two trips to England to play in the Curtis Cup matches as real rewards for the long hours she has spent in practicing golf because, as she expressed it, she was able to see most of the things about which she had read and heard about all her life.

The French women, she found, were very anxious to get into the international golf competition, but were lacking the support of the French people, who are not sports minded, at least not so far as golf is concerned.

Mme. Rene La Coste, wife of the former great tennis player, is the outstanding French woman golfer, and she is working hard trying to sell the idea of the French women coming to this country for matches.

ST. LOUIS BOYS IN THE MINORS

Walter (Red) Schuermann, who played in the outfield for Springfield of the Western Association the past season, has been sold to Houston of the Texas League for next season. He batted over .300.

John Kyler, the crooning outfielder-infielder of Bartlesville of the Western Association, was sold to Galveston of the Texas League and finished the season at shortstop for Galveston.

Charley Valci, big outfielder of Newport of the Northeast Arkansas League, has been sold to Rochester of the International League. Valci led the Northeast Arkansas League in hitting.

Harold Suenne of Vinita Park, who batted .314 as a catcher with Birmingham of the Southern Association, has been recalled by the Chicago White Sox.

Norman "Duke" Schleuter of Belleville, Ill., a catcher with Richmond, Va., in the Piedmont League, has been recalled out of the game with injuries.

In the selection of the most valuable player to his club in the Southern Association, won by Fred Sington of Chattanooga, now with the Senators, seven players received votes and Sington received 16 votes, the runner-up three, and Leo Nollenkamp, Little Rock outfielder, received one ballot.

Justin Keenoy, Northland avenue resident, who played shortstop for Mitchell of the Nebraska State League and was named on that league's all-star team, has been sold to Cedar Rapids of the Western League.

Gene Handley, hard-hitting outfielder of the Mount Aire team of the Bi-State League, will start play.

McNAMARA, VETERAN BIKE STAR, RECOVERING

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 18.—Reggie McNamara, the "iron man" of the bike racing game, has cheated death once more.

Stricken with internal hemorrhages six weeks ago, he was brought to Newark City Hospital in what physicians believed was a hopeless condition, but after several blood transfusions, there was little hope he would survive.

Today, he joked about his illness while taking a sun bath on the hospital roof. Aside from being somewhat paler than usual, the grizzled 32-year-old veteran of 100-odd six-day bike grinds looked as fit as ever. Doctors agreed he was in fine shape and almost ready to leave the hospital.

GOLD KNIGHTS WIN 10-INNING CONTEST

The Gold Knights had to play 10 innings to defeat the Hoffmeisters, 3 to 2, in a girls' game last night at Carondelet Softball Park. The losers held a 2 to 0 lead until the sixth, when the Gold Knights tied the score. The Naerts, trailing 5 to 1, staged a belated rally to trim the Nomads, 6 to 5, in the men's game.

Tonight's schedule has the Ring-side team playing the Texaco Tigers in the girls' game, and the Schiller Turners meeting the Tony Schmidt's in the men's contest.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 18.—With only lettermen barred, Don Faurot yesterday picked a crew of nine sophomores and two seniors to scrub football wars in a "B" team game against Chillicothe Business College tonight.

Sam Thomas, tubby 220-pound tackle who held down a third or fourth team berth all last season, and Joe Jones, who was shovelled all the way from a fifth team guard post to a starting assignment by the end of the season, were the only holdovers to catch Faurot's eye.

"I was playing at Pinehurst, N. C.," she said, "in the North-South tournament. The course is surrounded by pine trees and the Scottie walked out of the woods, saw what I was doing, so he trotted over and stuck his nose in the hole to see what it was all about."

"He couldn't find anything and looked at me solemnly, as though questioning my sanity. Spectators whistled to him and he ran off the hole, picked it out and again the Scottie walked out, stuck his nose in the hole, couldn't find anything, looked at me with a disgusted air, turned his back and trotted away from the whole proceedings."

PIERSON, Man., Sept. 18.—With seven more dogs still to run their preliminary one-hour heats in the All-America open prairie chicken championship, the stake will come to a close this afternoon and a new champion will be declared.

The stake has 25 starters and ranks second with all of the title stakes in the bird dog trials of the present season.

Unless one of the dogs still to run can surpass several heats of yesterday, it is more likely that no second series will be required for Chimes' Mississippi Jack, white and liver pointer, owned by Col. B. C. Goss

CAN A MOTHER-IN-LAW RUIN A MARRIAGE

She looked forward to being everything to Bill

Instead her mother-in-law ruled their home ...

Reported to Bill her suspicions about Frances

Their few hours alone were spent quarrelling ...

Bill promised to love, honor and cherish Frances when they were married. And for a time the marriage was as happy as Frances had dreamed it would be.

Then troubles started. Bill had to devote more and more time to his job. His mother, jealously resentful of Frances, came to live with them and promptly took command of their small home. Neglect, quarrelling and misunderstanding seemed bound to bring the marriage to a sudden stormy end.

ESCAPED PRISONER CAUGHT BY POLICE

Raymond Lynn, who escaped Aug. 29 from police custody at City Hospital, where he had been taken for treatment after having been identified as a drug store robber, was captured last night after police had received a telephone call that a man was flourishing a revolver in a tavern at 1432 Hadiomian avenue. Police went to the tavern, where two men told them that a man who had said his name was George Johnson had been shooting dice with them but when he began to lose, had threatened them with a revolver. They said he ran to a back room when police came. Police went to the room and found the man hiding in a pantry.

Taken to headquarters, he was identified by fingerprints as Lynn. The escape from City Hospital was made while Lynn was handcuffed. He jumped from a second-floor room after having been examined by a doctor. Lynn, 33 years old, is an ex-convict, having served three terms for robbery and one Workhouse sentence for carrying a concealed weapon.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

REMEMBER, partner, the first time you n' I saw a girl Bicyclist in bloomers way back in the 90's? Or, even more devastating, that eventful day when Mamie Jones came back from College with the first Gym Suit? Certainly raised some ruddy ructions.
didn't she?

But you think by this wouldn't you, that folks would be used to seeing females go athletic?
Then you'd think wrong. Still steams up some of us plenty. As little Florence Sylvester can testify.

Florence—curly-headed, freckled, with one of those twisty grins—goes to Lyndhurst, New Jersey, High School. Lyndhurst, Hi, with its 600 boy students, boasts a baseball team that was making history until Principal Edmund Burke upset their crack center fielder.
All because the center fielder was curly headed. Florence, and Principal Burke didn't think that center fielding was a proper job for a girl.

So now there's a row that spreads far beyond the Lyndhurst diamond.
What demands Florence, speaking for her several million sizzling sisters, "shouldn't a girl hold that position as well as a boy?" What's wrong with sport—any sport—for a woman, if she can qualify? Those silly old sex distinctions went out ages ago."

But DID they? According to most of our statute books — yes.
But how does the world really feel about it when it comes right down to running trunks and spiked soles?

Take those Olympic Game girls, frustration. I've a bunch of photographs on my desk, showing them in final trouts. Amazing sight, those slender bodies, buoyant as bubbles . . . whirling, wheeling, scoring, plunging, flashing like lightning. Pressure . . . strain and straining effort . . . is it,

after all, such a profitable privilege

—this new "equality" in sports?

Yes, I know the answers. Have made them myself—and what's more, agree with most of them.
Teaches 'em good sportsmanship and heaven knows they need it." It does and they do. "Makes them able to take it." Also true. Yet their grandmothers, bearing babies without anesthetic, hung up a pretty fair record for "taking it." Wonder if these kids will do any better when it comes to the long grind that lies ahead for every woman in any generation . . . the months and years when there isn't any man's going to start the pace nor any prize to stir a lagging spirit
. . . when there's only God to see you, and He's looking the other way.

Wifehood, motherhood, homemaking—I'm still set on the notion that there's the best career a girl can aim for. But will mixing in with the boys on the cinders help or hurt her when she eventually tackles that career?

Will she be a more understanding wife for having licked the Big Boy at his own game when they both were kids together . . . or for having learned, early and hard, what true humans can be when they're all racing for the same tape? Or will she be less patient—more easily irked by old John Henry's line?

You can't turn back the clock—not sister into pantaloons and spit curls again. No one but a sentimental fool would want to. But will—if YOU were training a spiritual, sensitive little filly for the big race, where'd you place her first?
Out where the going was toughest, steepest—and she had to learn to trot or be bit? Or on some gentler spot? We're listening!

Price Level Advances.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—An increase in the general wholesale commodity price level last week is attributed by the Labor Department to gains in food and farm products prices. The general price level increased to 81.5 per cent of its 1926 average from 80.9 per cent the previous week. During the corresponding week last year the index was 81.1. Farm products prices rose last week from 82.1 to 84.6 per cent of their 1926 average. Foods increased from 82.2 to 83.3 per cent.

A Woman's New York
By Alice HughesCONTRACT According to Culbertson
An Analysis of a Bridge Hand as Played in England

By Ely Culbertson

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. FOR the first time in the history of the Women's National Tennis Championship tournaments, we had a look at a feminine net star from the Orient. The first Far Easterner to compete for the title at our Forest Hills saucer is Mrs. Tokuko Moriwake Nakana, the Japanese champ.

Barely five feet tall is black-eyed little Mrs. Nakana, with a net-side weight of 115. For all her small stature, she has a mean sting in her forehand. As I talked to her the first day of the tournament, I kept thinking what an interesting mixed-doubles team could be concocted by tying her up with little "Bitzy" Grant, Atlanta's pride!

The little Oriental never had a lesson from a pro in her life, but 14 years of competitive tennis have taught her plenty. She won her first Japanese championship in 1925. Oddly enough, though both her parents were Japanese, she was and is an American citizen, having been born under Old Glory in Hawaii!

The tiny star's husband, Fugio Nakana, has been transferred to the New York office of the Yokohama Specie Bank from his former post in Tokio, and will be here for four years—so the Missus will be seen on local courts for some time to come. "I like America," she told me the other day. "Americans are friendly, frank and open; the food is wonderful—and you have so many fine tennis players!" Didn't take her long to find that out! Was she whipped?

LOCAL luncheon tables and cocktail lounges are still buzzing over the recent hitching of Winthrop (Winnie) Gardiner, one of THE (elittles) of the village, to the not-so-social Mildred Shay Murphy out in Yuma. Winnie's own the historic Gardiner's Island off the tip of Long Island.

Speaking of romance, there's no place to nurture it like the backstage regions during the long run of a hit play. That's real propinquity! Diana Hall and Theodore Newton, principals in the very successful "Dead End," have just announced their engagement. Both have toby backgrounds—she's Miss Porter's School and the American Academy of Dramatic Art; he's Lawrenceville and Princeton, no less...

Helene Lyloene, the Paris dressmaker, is just off the boat for a spot of business on our side of the Atlantic. Dresses she made for me in '34 and '35 boosted my sartorial standing to new highs (for me), and after seeing the little number for '36 I have a feeling I am going to do all right this fall. Such get-ups are great morale-booster.

Another high-class clothes-architect who has just turned up is the famous Creed of London. He brought with him one of the newest collections I've ever witnessed, too...

Remember Helen Kane, the plump minx who grew famous overnight with her hoop-a-dooping, and fell from sight almost as quickly? I saw her the other afternoon, plumper than ever, and she tells me hopefully that she's trying for a comeback. Little stage girls won't give up—not even boop-a-boop-a-doo!

CLOTHES notes from hither and thither—Local furriers are trotting about looking expansive and pleased. They had the biggest August in years, and cold, hard figures prove that in this district furs were practically 60 per cent higher than during the same month a year ago. And oddly enough, the more expensive pelts led the parade.

Modern Glamor Girls would rather be pretty and alluring than chic, my researches prove. They won't roll their hair up in Chinese screw-curls, but wear it in soft, face-framing ringlets. And, realizing that the men-folks prefer sheer black hosiery to any other sort, they wear it, whatever styleshark says.

The autumn's dinner dresses go up in front, practically unanimously. They display the ankle in front, with just a hint of a train in the rear.

Dip the knife blade in boiling water before cutting rich cheese and you will be able to cut even thin slices without the cheese sticking to the knife.

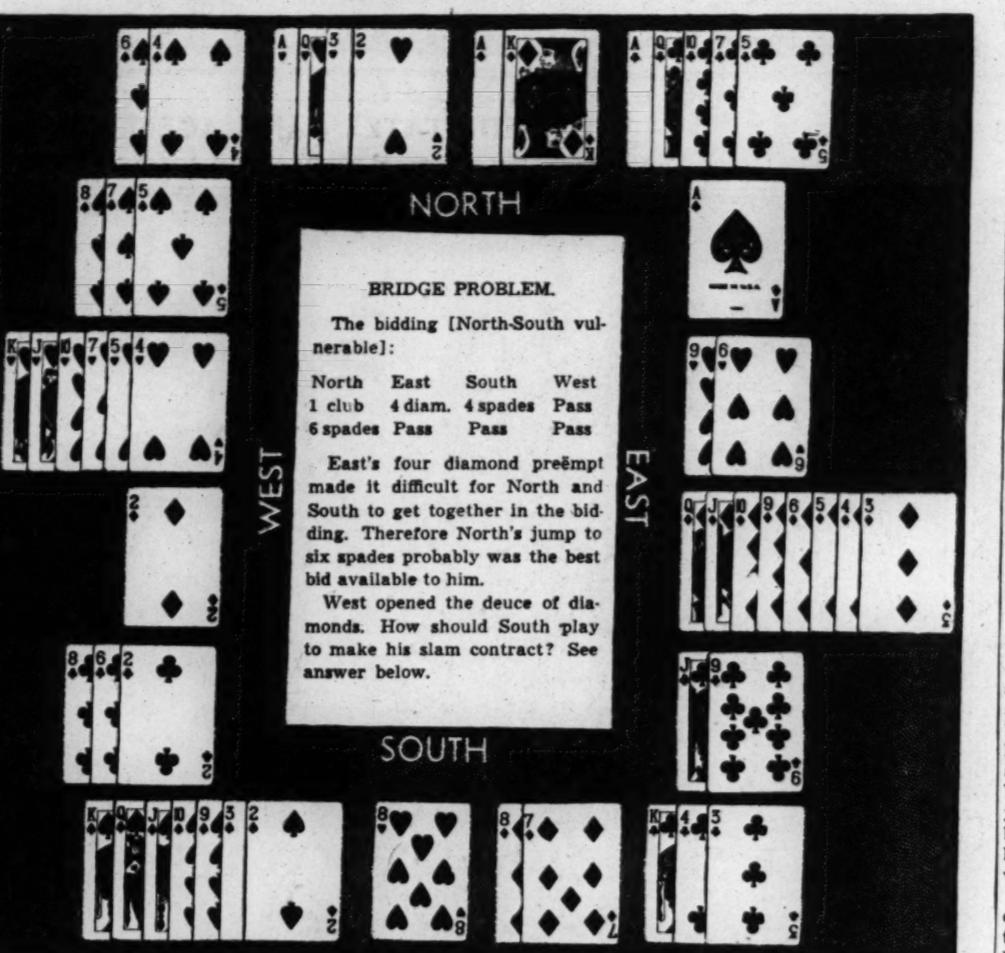

I like ABSO CRYSTALS for my Clothes Washing

It softens the water—loosens the dirt quickly—eases the scrubbing and rinsing—removes clothes odor and saves over half the soap. ABSO is best for children's and baby's clothes.

ANSWER: South must realize the great danger of East holding the spade ace and leading a second round of diamonds, which his partner will ruff. East's bid, coupled with the fact that his partner opened the deuce, practically guarantees the eight card suit, and almost certainly the spade ace. To avoid the ruff, South should enter his hand with the club king, and finesse against the king of hearts in order to discard his remaining diamond. The risk of this finesse is not nearly so great as the risk of not taking it.

Today's Questions. Question: My partner opened the bidding with one diamond. Next hand passed and I held the following:

♦A7 7 ♦853 ♦954 ♦10653. What should I bid?

Answer: You should pass. The fact that your hand cannot produce more than one trick indicates that no game is possible when your partner could not open the bidding with two.

Question: Should I keep partner's opening heart bid open with no trump with the following hand:

♦A7 7 ♦854 ♦Q76 ♦K853? Answer: Yes.

Here is the actual calling by those using the asking bids:

South West North East
1 heart Pass 1 spade Pass
4 diamonds Pass 5 clubs Pass
5 hearts Pass 5 NT Pass
6 spades Pass Pass

South has bid one spade.

But this is not the real "asking" hand. The critic's theme was that asking bids "betray the weak points of the defense" and, in this example, led East to the killing opening lead of the club king! He goes on to say, "North is down one, no matter what he does," and the inference is clear that he meant "after that lead."

Now, quite obviously the singleton diamond opening and ruff would defeat the contract on the spot, but defeat the contract on the spot, which would simply be hard luck for North-South. But the club opening is duck soup—or would be in America, since merely ordinary play would bring home the slam, even though the trumps did not break. The club ace wins and a heart is ruffed to the ace. A low heart ruff discloses the queen from West's hand. A trump to the ace and a second heart ruff; the queen of spades followed by declarer's last spade to the king, picking up East's jack—and it is all over. Declarer discards on the jack and nine of hearts, concedes the diamond ace and then enters and adds up the score to a total somewhat different from that nonchalantly tossed at us by the critic. My figures are 1430 points in the black.

South's assumption that spades is the agreed suit, although North has bid one spade, shows very strong spades. His inquiries are as to diamonds and hearts, so he is evidently short on clubs, and East led the club king. When North did not get out three rounds of trumps at once he went down two tricks by allowing not 720 points in the red. Of course, a difference of 2150 points may not be worth quibbling about—but I felt it ought to mention it. Just incidentally, it would give me a great deal of pleasure to lay out the North-South cards "as is," and shuffle and deal, time and again, the remaining twenty-six to East and West, always playing for a six spade contract. I am not adverse to this being accepted as a challenge. I will even let the critic conduct this defense.

When I propounded the asking bids, I had no thought that I was providing a panacea for all slam bidding difficulties. I did think that they would be invaluable on a large percentage of slam range hands. Now I am sure of it!

There is something very sad and very significant in the rantings of certain English contract authorities against "American influences." When such balderdash as the following comes from the pen of another contributor to the same English magazine a less tolerant commentator than myself might be led to murmur, "Can this be a jealous psychosis?"

I quote: "I quite expected disgrace (to a previous article) by rabid 'approachers'—this school designs every bid of 'one' to be kept open on the 'smell of an oilrag.' This expression, as American as it is inellegant, etc."

The black-face are my own—but the indictment has me baffled. Any American who has used, or knows the expression so glibly attributed to us is hereby beseeced to come forward and admit it—I cannot find any one that understands it, even.

Further quote: "The system mongers and especially the devotees of the 'approach forcing' are so violently anxious to gain any bid of 'one' open on nothing in the fear that game might be missed, etc."

And now I quote from the summary of my own system: "Lacking about one honor trick, or strong distributional support for partner's suit, the responding hand should usually pass (to an opening one bid.)"

The conclusion is (since the English authority certainly would not have stooped to deliberate distortion of facts—that he must be a poor interpreter.

Breaded Sweetbreads. Plunge sweetbreads into cold water and let stand for an hour. Drain and plunge into boiling water to which salt and vinegar have been added. Simmer for 20 minutes, remove from water and plunge again into cold water to make firm. Split sweetbread and cut each section in two. Dip in breadcrumbs, then in beaten egg and again in crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat until a lovely golden brown all over. Drain on brown paper and serve piping hot garnished with cress or parsley.

Correct Form In Invitation To big Family

Several Often Are Required —Various Problems on Wedding Propriety.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: MRS. GOOD-FRIEND is a widow with several grown children, all living with her at home. I should like to invite all of them but it does seem unusual. Is it necessary, from the standpoint of both expense and actual labor, to send invitations to all eight. Don't you think so, too, and what would you suggest?

Answer: Conventionally, two invitations are sufficient: One addressed to Mrs. Good-Friend and underneath her name, The Misses Good-Friend. But Good-Friend, Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: Several years ago I promised a friend of mine that when she married she would give her the "something blue" to wear at her wedding. This girl is going to be married soon and no one I ask seems to know what the customary "something blue" happens to be.

Answer: "Something blue" can be a ribbon tied on her underclothes, or garters, or it can be a blue stone in a pin. In fact, it can be any personal thing that can be worn without having the color noticed.

Dear Mrs. Post: When marrying a clergyman it is proper for the bride to have the wedding in his church rather than in her own? I thought the fact that the bridegroom has a church and a congregation of his own might make some converse ruling.

Answer: I think any one would understand why, under such circumstances, the bride might like to be married in the bridegroom's church. And certainly it could cause no criticism. However, if she has been very closely associated with her own church it would seem very appropriate that her own clergyman read the marriage service.

WORRIED MOTHER. Dear Mrs. Post: You have written that at every wedding the congregation stands at the first strain of the wedding march and remains standing until the wedding party has ended this recessional. I wonder if this was not a misprint.

Answer: No, it was not a misprint. Of course it may be that in denominations with which I am not familiar, follow another procedure, but I do know that at the rehearsal before a properly conducted wedding the clergyman makes it a point to tell the families who are to sit in the two front pews that they must stand when the first strain of the wedding march are played. Naturally, all those seated behind them then rise.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr: READ the problems of others in your column daily and want to come to you now with one of my own.

I am 19 years old and the boy whom I am engaged is 22. We have been going together for eight months and had decided to marry, until his parents told him if he married they would disown him. Mrs. Carr, I think this is very unfair. They want us to wait until next June, so that they may be fixed better financially and do not have to count on what he pays for board any longer. This boy also has a brother who is not working and who does not contribute so much, but is given preference to many things.

The father is working, and they own their own home and the larger part of it is rented out. I have given all the details and would like your advice as soon as possible. Please publish this.

BROKENHEARTED LOU.

While you are right in saying that it is unfair (and certainly these parents have taken a very extreme way to prevent your marriage) it might be worth while to consider a little for the sake of family harmony by waiting until Christmas time. Perhaps you will know better than just what the winter economic conditions will be generally, and they will be more willing to concede your rights. You are full young as yet and have known each other not so long a time. I believe the wait and the test will help all around.

Dear Mrs. Carr: HAVE a daughter 13 years old who is very slow in learning, but is very bright. She is going to a special school but is very backward. At home I cannot get her interested in anything. She doesn't try to be interested in anything without being told. But when I get serious and show her sternly that I really mean it, she gets so afraid and nervous. When I try to be kind and nice to her, she doesn't seem to care to do anything. I would like to know if it would be best to take her to a Christian school of some kind where she could be with other children and learn to do things for herself. But I couldn't pay for this because her daddy works 30 miles out in Illinois, and he doesn't make very much and I have three others to take care of.

WORRIED MOTHER.

I believe it would be best for you to take your daughter to the Child Guidance Clinic at 4647 McPherson Avenue, or you can call the City Health Department and ask for the Psychiatric Clinic. They would examine her and tell you whether it would be best to put her in a home or to use some other means to help her.

This answer will, I hope, serve for Mrs. H. D. E. M. with her boy.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WE are trying to organize a club for Jewish girls of 15 or 16 years of age. Any girl who is interested, please call Forest 5886 and ask for Esther. We would appreciate it if they would call between 2 and 4 o'clock.

ANXIOUS FIVE.

Dear Mrs. Carr: HAVE been reading your column for a long time and congratulate you upon your wonderful work.

I am a freshman in high school and am 14 years old. My ambition is to name the requirements of high school studies that will help most in becoming a nurse.

Second—I have a terrible habit of biting my finger nails. I would do anything to stop this, but I haven't succeeded so far, it seems.

Third—I met a boy this winter and went out with him once. I had a lovely time. Since I came home I have wanted to get in touch with him and know his address, but he doesn't know mine. Is there a way for me to drop in a card, showing that I remember him? Or have you another suggestion.

E. H.

I have given suggestions for the high school course in the column several times, after having consulted one of the superintendents of nurses at a hospital. I believe, though, that it would be best for you to get this information first hand. Go to one of the hospitals for the superintendent of nurses or someone who could give you this information and talk it over with them. I can tell you that four years are required.

For the second trouble, I will suggest large amounts of self-control. You would not make a desirable nurse if you keep up this habit. You will have to keep your fingers out of your mouth and antiseptics on them often.

The answer to the third question is:

Let the boy alone so that he can put his mind on his lessons and you do the same. You have time enough to start corresponding with boys and he probably would not answer anyhow; then that would embarrass you. When Christmas comes he will be a neat, artistic card.

The letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature.

Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

HALLS CREATE THE FIRST IMPRESSION

So an Attractive Arrangement Is Important to Home Interiors

The big vase of flowers in the turn of this staircase contributes beauty and design to this entrance hall.

By Bruno Lessing

LONDON, Sept. 17.

MUSICAL stuff. The Promenade Concerts are on every night day until October. They have been running in Queen's Hall, London, for 42 years. What interests me, next to the music, is that they are broadcasted these days. I was in Queen's Hall once and never want to go there again. It's a stuffy place and you have to go down stairs to get there. I hope it's perfectly fireproof because, in case of conflagration, it's tough to have to go upstairs to get out. But the concerts come perfectly over the radio and I can enjoy them in comfort.

For lovers of good music it is the finest, richest and most prolonged radio treat in the world.

There is no advertising talk—no mixture of Tchaikovsky and toothpaste or of Beethoven and bunion plasters. Only the finest music—classic and modern.

The conductor, Sir Henry J. Wood, ranks with Stokowski, Toscanini and Furtwangler. The orchestra—about 120 pieces—is well trained. And after having listened to these concerts over the radio, for over five years, I have come to the conclusion that Sir Henry is the cleverest arranger of musical programs in the world. There may be greater orchestras, and there may be conductors who could arrange a better program for one night a week, but Sir Henry's idea is to combine enjoyment with education and the fact that he has so many weeks to carry out his programs gives him an opportunity which no other conductor enjoys.

The floor covering is probably the most important single thing in the hall because it gets the brunt of the hard wear. A scatter rug can be used if that happens to be what you have, but a to-the-backbone floor covering is usually a little nicer for a small space like this. For one thing it won't kick up like a small rug, and besides in a small room it is more tranquil, we think, to have as little broken space as possible. If you choose a figured carpet, select a rather small design that will be in scale with the size of the room. If you choose a plain colored carpet, get a texture weave or one of the self-tone patterns—these won't show foot marks as easily as the solid tone carpets.

The higher quality linoleums are excellent for halls, too. They are easy to keep, wear well and are available in a repertoire of thrilling colors.

The perfectly plain colors are the smartest, but they show every foot mark. There are jasper and marbled effects that are just about as charming to look at.

It is interesting to him borders or medallions inlaid in to suit your own wishes and to follow the shape and pattern of the room.

The next most urgent question to solve in decorating the hall is wall treatment. If the walls are terribly cut up with doors and openings, don't attempt anything very fancy... a plain wall is more successful in this case. Keep the colors in the rooms adjoining—if they have all the same kind of walls, it's usually better to do the hall in the same color, though it can be in a harmonious contrast. If the adjoining rooms have different colors, then select a harmonious neutral for the hall walls... gray is a smart new neutral and very successful when properly used in the various shades and with colorful accessories or with colored woodwork and doors, such as henna or jade green.

DAILY MAGAZINE

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH
By Logan Clendening, M. D.

WE HAVE discoursed on mouth cleanliness and the use of the tooth brush. Such cautions may seem superfluous to some, but not when we ponder the announcement not long ago by a Secretary of Interior that four out of every five persons in our enlightened land do not brush their teeth.

Of course, it must be admitted the most up-to-date views of the prevention of tooth decay emphasize the nutrition of the teeth rather than the tooth brush. That view is seen on the walls of most dentists' waiting-rooms today, in the form of placards with the advice to eat plenty of milk, butter, eggs, green vegetables and fruits for the sake of the teeth.

The experiments upon which this doctrine is based were done by an English woman, May Melaney. They were begun in 1917 and still are being carried on. She worked on dogs, rabbits, rats and man, and concluded that "the problem of dental caries and periodontal disease (gumrosis) is fundamentally a problem of nutrition," and that a lack of vitamin D is an important causative factor. However, reported that by feeding guinea pigs diets deficient in the fat-soluble vitamins and the anti-scurvy vitamin, changes in the teeth similar to dental caries in man was produced. Lack of phosphorus and calcium have also been reported to create a tendency to dental caries.

HERE is evidently no one factor in diet responsible for the production of caries, either in experimental animals or man. Hanke has conducted probably the best controlled study in man; based on the impressions he had gained in private practice, he made extensive and carefully checked observations on the children at Moosehart, Ill., the City of Childhood of the Loyal Order of Moose. He concluded that the most important dietary preventive to caries was orange juice and the juice of one lemon a day. This led to the disappearance of most of the gum inflammation and 50 per cent of the dental decay.

It would be unfortunate if we allowed these experiments in nutrition to let us neglect the tooth brush and mouth hygiene. It would seem to be a commonsense proposition that good teeth depend upon three things: (1) Adequate nutrition, (2) mouth cleanliness and (3) the aid of the dentist.

The dentist can do his part by making the teeth as regular as possible and leveling down the bags or bags which might catch food particles and breed germs. But in spite of all preventive measures, small areas of dental decay will occur, and these should be treated early.

Once more let me make a plea for the first permanent tooth. It is a molar and comes in at the back of the temporary teeth. It is liable to be mistaken by parents for one of the first set, and if it becomes decayed, neglected. More poor mouths are the result of this neglect than any other one thing.

A Tragedy Occurs, and Stephen Blames Cynthia Who Returns to Roger—A Change of Mind.

CHAPTER ELEVEN.

CYNTHIA'S hand went to her throat. "What is it, Stephen?" she breathed.

His tone was so flat, colorless, that for a dreadful instant the words had no meaning.

"Gloria is dead," he said.

"Oh—!" It was a horrified gasp.

"She took poison and died before her maid could get help." Still in that hideous calm. "Marti heard it over the radio."

Cynthia covered her face with her hands and shrank back as if from a blow.

"What have I done?" she whispered, and repeated: "What have I done?"

"You have killed Gloria Gray." Stephen's lips barely moved.

"And I help you do it."

"Oh, no, Stephen." She was beside him, clinging frantically to his arm. "I did it—it was all my fault."

Stephen shook her off. "Don't touch me," he said. "Gloria loved me, and when I turned against her she took her life. My God!" It was a frenzied whisper.

"Maybe not, Stephen—maybe not. Perhaps there was some other reason."

"There was no other reason. Gloria told me this morning that she loved me—had always loved me—begged me to be a little kind to her." He raised haggard eyes to the picture over the fireplace, then swung away as if the eyes accused him. "Death," he murmured. "It's a horrible thing for one as beautiful as Gloria."

"Oh, I wish I hadn't," Cynthia moaned. "How could I bring this on you when I wouldn't hurt you for anything in the world?" It was like a grim dream, unbelievable, fantastic—horrible.

Stephen turned his drawn face toward her and she shuddered. His lips were parted in a mirthless smile. A laugh, short, brutal, broke from him.

"And to think," he mused in a half-crazed whisper, "that I have been so blinded by you that I couldn't see Gloria. You tricked me—you lied and lied her to her death—to her death, I tell you. His voice rose, his hands clenched until the knuckles showed white. Slowly he advanced upon Cynthia. "And all you can say—all you ever can say is: 'I'm going to marry Roger!'"

"Stephen!"

"Go on and marry him. Make a fool of him as you have of me. Go before I forget myself—I never want to see you again." His face was a tortured mask.

"Stephen—I'm sorry—I'd give my life—"

"Get out." It was like a pistol shot, and before the madness in his eyes Cynthia ran.

"All day she sat in Martie's apartment and shivered. She held her kilt close to her because it was warm. To Martie she said over and over again: 'Gloria is dead and it's my fault!'

Stephen said, "Oh, rubbish!" but Cynthia still shivered. Sometimes she moaned and covered her eyes, sometimes she walked the floor. Late in the afternoon Martie got a paper and Cynthia's teeth chattered as she listened to the front-page notice. Afterward she was calmer. Stephen was in no way connected with the tragedy. Only once was his name mentioned. The article

Want to see—and the gasoline I'll burn up!"

"Cynthia"—Mrs. Lambert exclaimed in a scandalized tone.

"That's what I mean," Roger was unperturbed. "All those things take money."

Mr. Lambert rubbed his hands together uneasily. "If for any reason you think Cynthia will be too great a burden—" he began.

"Not at all," Roger returned, cheerfully. "All luxuries come high. I was only telling you—"

"Let's have a swim," Cynthia interrupted the conversation by jumping to her feet. She knew she would scream or do something dreadful if she listened to Roger another minute.

"Get understanding," the Bible tells us. But we can never get it all. Even the longest life leaves the art of life unmastered.

Blotters

If you should upset a bowl of flowers on a varnished surface, soak up the water with blotters.

They will take up all the water without leaving that smoky appearance that follows the wake of a towel or cloth.

One leg was partially free and she could move one hand. She struggled wildly. She had no idea whether she was heading for shallow water or away from it. She gritted her teeth and attempted to break Roger's hold. It was useless.

At this last instant of endurance she suddenly felt her burden being jerked away and she rose, grasping to the surface.

"You fool!" It was her father's voice. She took a feeble stroke and clung to the dock post. "Hold on, honey," and she held on. She heard running feet above her head, heard her mother scream. Then she saw Roger crumble. Mr. Lambert's fist had met his neck and he sagged like a sodden lump.

And then it was all over. The cottage settled down. Roger lay in his bed, completely conscious, silent, wordless. Cynthia, rolled in a blanket which prickled, gazed at the rafters with burning eyes. Something had happened to her in the black water. She was herself again, eager, purposeful.

Even all evening she was aware of inner excitement. Roger's half angry contrition went unnoticed. She made light of the incident—it had been nothing—nothing.

In the morning she came to set out for the 200-odd mile trip to Lake Okoboji. They started early, Mr. and Mrs. Lambert in the front seat, Cynthia and the trusty Hilda in the back, a trailer bouncing along behind. They reached the cottage in time for lunch, and afterward while Cynthia helped her mother make beds and move the porch furniture out of the cluttered living room, she had no feelings at all.

"When we come back—when I'm rested," she said.

At last the morning came to set out for the 200-odd mile trip to Lake Okoboji. They started early, Mr. and Mrs. Lambert in the front seat, Cynthia and the trusty Hilda in the back, a trailer bouncing along behind. They reached the cottage in time for lunch, and afterward while Cynthia helped her mother make beds and move the porch furniture out of the cluttered living room, she had no feelings at all.

The wedding was to be on Wednesday and Roger was expected on the preceding Sunday. By that time every arrangement had gone on to its logical conclusion. Mrs. Lambert had no sympathy with plans which miscarried.

On Sunday morning Cynthia sat on the porch waiting for Roger. She sat perfectly still. Her mother read the Sunday paper and made an occasional remark. A lazy breeze rustled the trees, huge flies buzzed outside in the sunshine, made little thumping sounds as they hit the screens. Children's voices and their laughter floated across the water.

Cynthia was not alarmed; it was more like disgust she felt. She ran through the shallow water intending to reach a hand to Roger and pull him back to safety. But in his excited maneuvering he had worked himself beyond her grasp.

Without a moment's hesitation she took a quick stroke toward him. Inexperienced in life-saving, she had not counted on the unreasoning terror of a person who thinks he is drowning!

Roger caught at her with frantic hands and before she knew what had happened she was pinioned and helpless. Roger's arms and legs, like steel bands, gripped her, crushed her.

Cynthia sank beneath the water.

Or Words to That Effect

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WE wish to record the return of the big butter and egg man to New York night clubs, flea bags and drums.

The butter and egg man is anybody with a bankroll as loose as top soil in a drought. He can be a banker, an oil baron, an out-of-town buyer or a college boy home for the holidays. But if he drives up in skirmish formation and throws his money over the trans-

The nation is prosperous when champagne ripples on Broadway and the laugh of the nocturnal idiot is magna vox by low ceilings, velvet draperies and alcoholic acoustics.

Money is like rain which falls in the hills and the valleys, runs down to the sea in rivers, is syphoned up by the sun into clouds that drift back over the hills and valleys to rain all over again. The stuff must be kept in circulation, and there must be a mean precipitation in order to strike an all-year-round average.

The butter and egg man may be noisy, raucous, blatant and corrugated, but his presence is a direction flag to prosperity. When he takes the rubber band off his cash he is removing the tournequet from local and national credit.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. Se
United States District Judge
E. Otis ruled today that the Bird Thayer Dry Goods
Kansas City must pay the Ground Rent Trust $10,158 quarterly ground rent un less of a 99-year lease st quarterly payment of $39,32 of gold. The lease was ex 1930.

Evidence was that the r paid by checks, each for $60 devaluation of the dollar b President Roosevelt.

When, by operation of became impossible for the d company to deliver gold, it held, it became its duty to lawful currency of the U States in an amount equi value to the amount of go fied in the lease or give ession of the property.

Suit for Injunction
The dry goods company sought to enjoin the Boston from attempting to collect $6000 in United States rency as quarterly rent, com that the Government would more than that for the st amount of gold.

Testimony disclosed that goods company made quarterly payments of $10,158.75 from 1934 until Jan. 1, 1935, but demanded that the lessors $20,793.75, which it contende excess payments. The less fused and as a final step de delivery of gold, offering to it in England.

"Any statute or regulation purports to compel the lawf cessor of gold bullion (or an property) to surrender it, a sovereign for anything less just compensation is clearly and without effect," Judge said.

Judge Expounds Law
